PEARSON TO PUSH INNER CABINET PLAN

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Prime Minister L. B. Pearson will be creating a powerful inner cabinet before he retires in April.

Mr. Pearson has long held a theory that the British practice of having a strong inner group in the cabinet would provide sounder and more efficient administrations.

Now he has disclosed his intention to create such a strong inner group to be responsible for federal planning, supervising major expenditures and establishing priorities for spending.

The prime minister in creating a powerful inner cabinet committee would likely appoint the ministers heading the key spending departments such as finance, trade, revenue, defence, agriculture, health and welfare and external affairs.

THERAPEUTIC ABORTIONS

Two Hospitals Favor Move If Law Changed

By JOHN MIKA

Times Legislative Reporter

Two of Greater Victoria's public hospitals will go along with therapeutic abortions if they are legalized and the third will not make up its mind until the law has been changed.

Officials at Royal Jubilee Hospital and Rest Haven Hospital in Sidney today said their procedures would be made to conform with the current amendment bill to the Criminal Code if it becomes law.

But St. Joseph's Hospital administrator Dr. E. G. Q. Van Tilburg this morning repudiated a report which said such abortions will not be allowed there on religious grounds even if Canadian law is changed.

"If it is made legal we can hardly do anything else, can we?" he said.

"NOT ADAMANT"

"I am not adamant as suggested. I want to repudiate that."

"We have not seen the legislation so we could not possibly give an opinion now on what our policy will be—one way or the other."

Dr. Van Tilburg said St. Joseph's as a Catholic hospital is opposed to abortions including those now legal where the mother's life is at stake.

"These are now done in other hospitals as abortions but not here—at least not directly."

"However, if there are diseases involved (in a pregnant woman) we will do a procedure that might cause an abortion although that's not the purpose."

HEALTH OF MOTHER

"But, from what little I've seen about this bill, it involves therapeutic abortions—that is something which does not involve the life of the mother but rather her health, whether physical or mental, and that's another thing."

"But I don't think we can commit ourselves (the hospital) to a position before we know what the change in the law is."

Royal Jubilee Hospital will go along if the bill is made into law, said executive director Dr. A. C. Pickles.

He said an "appropriate mechanism" for implementing the law would be established at the hospitals but pointed out that therapeutic abortions would have to originate "with a request of the patient."

"If such requests are made (providing the law is changed) then they would be assessed medically by a committee of senior men here," he said.

PERMITTED NOW

Thomas J. Bradley, administrator at Rest Haven, said legal abortions are permitted now in his hospital where a medical board decides the woman's life.

MEN LAUGH, JOKE

17 Workers Rescued From Water Tunnel

GORMAN, Calif. (AP)—Seventeen men, trapped for 13 hours behind a cave-in inside a snowcapped mountain, crawled through a narrow passageway to safety today.

A cheer went up as the men emerged from the entrance to a 1½-mile-long state water project tunnel in the Tehachapi mountains, which separate northern and southern California.

Fellow workmen had tried to reach the men from three directions, but feared the men might be trapped as long as four or five days. However, one team—digging head-on through 80 feet of dirt, rock and steel blocking the tunnel—made rapid progress after finding the collapsed steel roof had formed a partial passageway.

QUICK WORK

"No one felt we would never get out," said one of the trapped men, H. G. Harrison, a construction inspector. But we thought it would take a week to get us out.

"How they got to us as fast as they did I'll never know."

The trapped men laughed, told jokes and ate and drank from supplies lowered through two pipes that were undamaged by the cave-in. Their air supply was never in danger and they were warmer—by at least 40 degrees—than rescuers and on-lookers standing above ground in 14-degree temperature.

WASN'T SCARED

"I wasn't scared, not a bit," declared Roy Willis. "The only reason one of the rescuers worked so hard is I owe him 30 bucks."

The tunnel project is one of four under construction in the Tehachapi mountains, part of the $2,800,000,000 California aqueduct which will carry 110,000,000 gallons an hour of northern California water to southern California.

William R. Gianelli, director of the state water resources department, said a hydraulically-operated digging machine was being used Thursday to change the grade in the tunnel, and it collapsed because workmen apparently didn't replace all the steel ribs and plates used for support.

WIRE BRIEFS

Pope Offers To Mediate Vietnam War

Johnson Expected In Rome

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Pope Paul offered today to mediate in the Vietnam war as the expectation grew here that President Johnson would visit him before Christmas.

The Pope, in his Christmas address to the College of Cardinals, said he was saddened and amazed that all attempts at impartial mediation had been foiled and said he has dared to offer his collaboration.

Well-informed sources here said today it was likely President Johnson would call on the Pope around Christmas eve on his way back from Australia.

But no confirmation was available from the Vatican, Italian authorities, or the American embassy.

Vatican sources said if the president should wish to come, the Pope, who has been conducting a personal campaign for peace in Vietnam, would be glad to receive him.

The Pope told the cardinals: "We are saddened and amazed to observe how each disinterested offer of mediation has been made in vain, and each attempt at honest and peaceful negotiations rejected; while an honorable solution to the grievous and threatening dispute seem to us still possible."

Pope Paul added: "Being aloof from all party interests, and impassioned only by the human values involved, we have dared to offer our collaboration . . . in the most effective way we may be permitted and requested, for the re-establishment of true peace."

The Pope repeated his earlier appeals for a stop to the American bombing of North Vietnam.

He also called on the North Vietnamese to give a "sign of a serious desire for peace" and indirectly called on the Soviet Union to use its influence to this purpose.

RAIN MELTS VANCOUVER SNOWFALL

VANCOUVER (CP)—Rain began turning snow to slush in the Vancouver area early today after a storm Thursday dumped up to nine inches of snow on parts of southwestern British Columbia.

LBJ Salutes U.S. Pilots In Thailand

KHORAT, Thailand (AP)—United States President Johnson flew here secretly tonight on the latest leg of a continuing mystery trip, telling American combat pilots "I want to look each of you in the eye."

that the two men agreed on ways to promote peace in Vietnam.

Before the service in Melbourne for Holt, who disappeared last Sunday while swimming in heavy surf off the southeast coast, Johnson called on the prime minister's wife to express his condolences. He was met by Holt's three stepsons, Nicholas, Andrew and Samuel, and was applauded by a crowd of 200.

The White House staff had sought to keep the trip here secret. Word got out about the Khorat stop, but a secrecy lid still was on the president's future travel plans.

Speaking to men in uniform here, Johnson said:

"I realize that an old man is a poor excuse for your wife and your family and your loved ones, but I wanted so much to be with you at Christmas. I want to look each of you in the eye."

There was much speculation that he might visit South Vietnam itself, although his staff refused to say where he would go next.

There have also been rumors the President would stop in Rome to talk with Pope Paul.

L'Unita, the Italian Communist party paper, indicated the party was ready with a giant demonstration against U.S. policy in Vietnam.

TALKS WITH ALLIES

During his 36 hours in Australia, Johnson talked with the interim prime minister, John McEwen, and leaders of South Vietnam, South Korea, New Zealand, Thailand and the Philippines—U.S. allies in the Vietnam war—as well as with British Prime Minister Wilson and Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore.

His meeting with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu ended with a declaration

Leaders Pay Tribute To Memory of Holt

MELBOURNE (AP)—The late Australian Prime Minister Holt was revered in a solemn memorial service today in St. Paul's Anglican Cathedral.

He was eulogized before the biggest assembly of the world leaders Australia has ever known: Prince Charles, heir to the British throne; President Johnson; the prime ministers of Britain and New Zealand; a cabinet minister from Canada; Northern Development Minister Arthur Laing; and the heads of state or top men from most Asian neighbors—Japan, India,

Indonesia, Laos, Cambodia, Malaysia, Singapore, Thailand, Nationalist China, South Vietnam, The Philippines and South Korea.

All these top people came at a moment's notice because it was only five days since Holt disappeared while swimming in the surf at Portsea and three days since it was decided to hold a memorial service today.

About 10,000 people stood in the mild summer sunshine during the service, because only 1,600 ticket-holders could get inside.

CHILDREN OF ASIA FUND

It's Orphanage or Death For This Korean Family

By KATHRINE THOMAS

How unbearably hard it is for Canadian mothers to part with their children when they go to a summer camp.

Can we even imagine what it would be like to be forced to part with our child forever?

There were eight members in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Kim Kyung Ae, the two parents and six small children.

They lived in an old, straw-thatched hut, consisting of only one room and a tiny adjacent kitchen place on the slope of Yoo-dal, the sacred mountain protecting the city of Mokpo.

Since the family did not possess any land, there was not even an entrance gate leading to the hut.

Both parents were daily workers in the nearby vegetable fields.

But some time ago, Mrs.

Kim contracted tuberculosis. Still she continued to work, to earn a few cents a day.

Now the drought, that affected South Korea last July has wiped out their employment.

It was impossible to feed all the children, crying with hunger.

So to keep them alive, Mrs. Kim had to place three of her children in an orphanage.

And because they have no money, they cannot repair their hut. The roof is leaking and the log supporting the ceiling is threatening to collapse.

They live by chance from day to day.

With the arrival of the cold season, they are now collecting leaves from the mountain, to keep them warm through the winter.

Without the help of the Unitarian Service Committee,

the Kims would have quickly succumbed to the painful rigors of their existence.

The family is now receiving medical assistance from the USC Mokpo TB Children's clinic and a USC social team is supplying them with clothing and sufficient barley and milk rations.

But there are many families throughout Korea, India and Hong Kong who are in desperate need of assistance.

Help to make their lives a little more bearable by contributing to the Times Christmas Appeal.

Donations may be left at the main branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Yates at Douglas, the Times business office or mailed to the Children of Asia Fund in care of the Victoria Daily Times.

Official receipts will be mailed out by the USC from

Rapid Approval Forecast

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Trudeau Thursday predicted sweeping Criminal Code changes introduced in the Commons Thursday would win rapid and overwhelming approval.

"Parliament has shown in the past week that it is prepared to deal with so-called progressive legislation," the liberal-minded 46-year-old justice minister said.

He evidently was referring to legislation adopted by Parliament this week to broaden the grounds for divorce.

The Criminal Code changes brought forward by Mr. Trudeau, who has been justice minister for eight months, are the most extensive since a revision in the early 1950s.

Given first reading Thursday, the changes won't be debated in detail until Parliament returns from Christmas recess Jan. 22.

MAJOR CHANGES MADE

Four of the major areas of change:

—Legalization of therapeutic abortions where a hospital committee certifies that a continued pregnancy could endanger a mother's life or health;

—Mandatory breath analysis tests for persons suspected of impaired driving;

—A far-reaching law that would allow federal or provincial governments to hold lotteries.

—A measure legalizing homosexual acts committed in private by two consenting adults.

Conflict in the Criminal Code provisions on abortion have made hospitals and doctors

Mainland Woman Murdered

VANCOUVER (CP)—A North Vancouver mother of three children was found slain today in bushland near Britannia Beach, 20 miles north of Vancouver.

Two North Vancouver youths and a 16-year-old North Vancouver girl were held at Corvallis, Ore., for questioning in connection with the stabbing of Mrs. Rose Vollet, 41-year-old wife of a North Vancouver fireman.

They were arrested Thursday night in Corvallis and turned over to Marion County, Ore., authorities.

Some talk o' peace in Vietnam—an' thet c'd be ominous.

JUDGMENT MARRED

But the testing officer said he wasn't able to judge distance properly, "and shouldn't be on the road."

By this time Mr. Rodger was also jovial, but his driving wasn't quite as bad.

After 10 drinks, Mr. Sullivan's speech and vision were impaired. He staggered slightly while walking. On his driving test, he knocked over poles he was supposed to drive between.

Mr. Rodger was also impaired after 13 drinks. Police said both would have been arrested if spotted driving.

In the final driving test, Mr. Sullivan had 10 times as many points scored against him as in the first. Mr. Rodger had five times as many.

After three drinks, Mr. Sullivan made twice as many driving errors as he did before his first. He had no problem with speech or with walking. Mr. Rodger also made more errors, but got a better score than Mr. Sullivan.

The errors increased with the next two rounds.

After the seventh round—about 10 ounces of liquor—Mr. Sullivan became quite jovial, and after the eighth, was convinced he could drive as well as ever.

They Were (Hic) Good Drivers ... After the 13th Drink

EDMONTON (CP)—Two Edmonton men got drunk and drove.

Barry Sullivan and Bill Rodger, both announcers with Edmonton radio station CJCA, were trying to prove that alcohol and gasoline don't mix.

They succeeded.

... CRIMINAL CODE

wary of performing them for some time.

Only this week, the Commons health committee recommended that the code be clarified and that therapeutic abortion be allowed, as it would be under the Trudeau bill.

The breath analysis legislation is similar to that which came into force in Britain Oct. 9. The number of accidents resulting in death or injury dropped 42 per cent in metropolitan London in the next month.

The Canadian Highway Safety Council welcomed the proposed Canadian change as a "much-needed deterrent to impaired and drunk driving."

The test for drivers suspected of impairment would be mandatory and a reading of .10 per cent of alcohol or more would be prima facie evidence of impairment.

Justice officials said a man of normal size would have to take six drinks in an hour to produce such a reading.

The highway safety council said it is disappointed that the reading won't be eight-tenths of one per cent but it believed that the law, if passed, "will result in an immediate reduction in traffic accidents."

ALLOWS LOTTERIES

Mr. Trudeau said the federal government doesn't intend to initiate a national lottery. However, it would be able to do so "if and when" one was desired.

The legislation was aimed mainly at provinces wanting lotteries. Quebec had a lottery law on the books since 1934, awaiting enabling legislation in Ottawa.

Manitoba also has expressed interest in operating a lottery.

Unlike the United States, where federal laws prohibit inter-state lotteries or sweepstakes, a Canadian province could sell tickets in another province with permission of the second province.

Provinces would also be able to license religious and charitable organizations to operate lotteries with an annual limit of $10,000 in prizes.

Agricultural fairs would be able, under provincial licence, to sell tickets on and off the fair grounds for a prize not exceeding $35,000.

LIMIT PRIZES

Churches and charitable groups would be able to hold small games of chance, prizes limited to $100 and "raffles of small value" could be held by such organizations under municipal licence.

All race tracks with federal or provincial incorporation would be able to hold pari-mutuel betting. Ottawa would have the authority to collect one per cent instead of the present one-half of one per cent of the amount wagered if it wished, and 10 saddle races instead of eight would be allowed daily at such tracks.

The up-to-date aspect of the bill is best reflected in the changes affecting homosexuals. They are tied directly to the landmark Klippert case, on which the Supreme Court of Canada made a controversial ruling Nov. 7.

The case involved Everett George Klippert, 40, arrested by RCMP at Pine Point, N.W.T., on four charges of gross indecency involving private acts with consenting male adults.

DISMISSED APPEAL

Klippert was sent to prison in 1965 as a dangerous sexual offender and is still there. The Supreme Court dismissed his appeal Nov. 7.

Under the proposed new law, he couldn't have been arrested in the first place. It exempts consenting adults acting in private from laws providing penalties of up to 14 years for buggery or bestiality and up to five years for gross indecency.

It also redefines the term dangerous sexual offender to avoid the possibility of consenting adults being labelled and imprisoned indefinitely on preventive detention.

Restrictions on the possession of master auto keys, a new law to deal with harassing telephone calls and a law that could prohibit repeated offenders from keeping a domestic animal or bird for up to two years after conviction for cruelty to animals also are among the changes.

Another new law would tighten up restrictions on forged passports.

Within the court room itself:—Publication or broadcasting of evidence taken at a preliminary hearing could be prohibited at the wish of the accused.

Provinces would be authorized to appoint a board to review at least every six months the case of a person in custody after being found unfit by reason of insanity to stand trial or found not guilty because of insanity. There is no provision for such review now.

—Either defence or prosecution would be able to appeal acquittals for insanity, or cases where an accused was found unfit to stand trial for this reason.

—Offenders with more than one previous conviction would be eligible for probation.

—Amendments would make it easier and cheaper to appeal summary convictions.

Approval Greeted Changes In Abortions, Sex Laws

TORONTO (CP)—Amendments to the Criminal Code introduced in Parliament Thursday were received with general approval here.

The proposal to legalize homosexual acts carried out in private between consenting adults was greeted enthusiastically by mental health experts.

Dr. R. E. Turner, director of the Forensic Clinic of the Clarke Institute of Psychiatry, said: "It will take a great deal of pressure fear and anxiety from homosexuals. I think this is a considerable step, with more to go."

Dr. J. W. Mohr, research associate at the Forensic Clinic, said the proposed law simply was catching up with present-day thinking and practice.

Insp. William Pilkington, head of the Metropolitan Toronto morality squad, said the proposal is not expected to make much difference in his department. He said the last time police here pressed a charge for a private homosexual act was 12 years ago.

SOME OPPOSED

The proposal to legalize abortion to save a mother's life drew support from church and medical spokesmen but opposition from some other groups.

Rev. J. R. Hord, secretary of the United Church's Board of Evangelism and Social Services, said the proposed changes in the abortion law are in line with his church's official position.

Very Rev. E. M. Howse, former United Church moderator, said a new abortion law should be drawn up with care. Abortion should take place "only when it becomes reasonably certain that it is the least of all possible evils."

Rev. Edward Sheridan, professor of moral theology at Regis Jesuit Seminary, said he could not oppose revision of abortion laws in cases of physical risk to a mother.

Anglican Canon Maurer Wilkinson said legalized abortion under the terms of the bill represented Anglican opinion.

Olive Heron, president of the Emergency Committee For The Defence Of Unborn Children, said 10,000 names already have been collected on a petition to fight the proposed abortion law.

Mrs. Heron said the committee, formed Sept. 6, hopes to collect more signatures before the bill is voted on in the Commons. She said signatures have come from every province.

APPROVES MOVE

The proposal to make breath-analysis tests compulsory was described by Morton Shulman-New Democratic Party MPP for High Park, as the only way to keep drinking drivers off the road.

Police Chief James Mackey of Metropolitan Toronto said the Canadian Association of Police Chiefs has been urging the proposal for years.

Controller Allan Lampert said the tests will mean "the policeman won't have to be judge and jury any longer."

Dr. Howse said government lotteries are the "most unprofitable" method of taxation possible.

Dr. Hord said lotteries dry up "the springs of charity" and suggested they tend to attract shysters.

WEEKEND WEATHER PICTURE ACROSS CANADA

SYNOPSIS—The weather has been wet on the south coast of British Columbia with over three and one-half inches of rain at Comox in the past 24 hours and nearly two inches at Vancouver Airport. Freezing rain was still occurring at Hope this morning and driving conditions were hazardous. The western valleys of the Interior will like have some freezing rain today also and there is a chance for freezing rain in the Eastern Interior valleys tonight.

The weather system giving the heavy precipitation to the coast started to move inland across the Lower Mainland around noon today. Behind it the weather will remain cloudy and mild and the rain will decrease to only a few showers.

House in the 85-minute interval between the end of the service and his departure.

Leaders from 20 nations paid homage to the prime minister. While Johnson was at Government House, police briefly detained a 19-year-old youth near the driveway and questioned him about a rifle. They said later the rifle was in the youth's car, was not in working order, was unloaded and had no ammunition with it. They said the youth was able to give a satisfactory explanation for the rifle and was released.

New Controls Over Firearms

Handguns, Automatic Weapons Now Placed on Restricted List

OTTAWA (CP) — The Criminal Code will give authorities new controls over firearms in a series of amendments introduced in the Commons Thursday.

Classifications of "prohibited" and "restricted" weapons are set up and broadened from similar provisions in the existing code.

Handguns and fully automatic weapons go onto the restricted list, requiring a permit for possession and use by their owner. The cabinet will have power to declare any type of weapon as prohibited or restricted in order to deal quickly with new weapons coming on the market.

The prohibited list was previously restricted to switch knives and shotguns or rifles sawed off to a barrel length of less than 20 inches. Silencers have been added and the list made open-ended for the special cabinet orders.

The amendments also empower the court that convicts a person of a firearms offence to prohibit him from having a firearm for five years after his release.

CAN APPEAL

A registration certificate or permit may be refused or revoked if the RCMP decides an applicant cannot handle the weapon safely, but there is a right of appeal.

The amendments also provide for complete records of the manufacture, sale, import and repair of restricted weapons. They require a repairer of firearms and a pawnbroker who takes restricted weapons in pawn to obtain a permit.

At present only retailers need have such a permit.

Persons under 14 will be prohibited from buying firearms or ammunition, a change from the existing code under which this is allowed by permit.

Adults lawfully in possession of a firearm may supervise its use by others—a measure to allow instruction in safe handling.

The code does not change provisions applying to use of firearms by sportsmen, target shooters or gun collectors.

Chief Backs Compulsory Breath Test

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto Police Chief James Mackey said Thursday he supports proposed legislation to make breath tests for drivers compulsory.

"For years we have been making representations and presenting briefs to the federal government through the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police. We are behind this all the way."

Mandatory breath analysis tests for persons suspected of impaired driving was among the recommendations introduced in the Commons by Justice Minister Trudeau Thursday designed to bring the Criminal Code in line with advanced social thought.

Preliminary Hearings Under Veil?

OTTAWA (CP) — A new section to the Criminal Code would prohibit newspaper publication or broadcasting reports of evidence taken during preliminary inquiries if the accused asks for such prohibition.

The new section is included in an omnibus bill amending the Criminal Code which was introduced in the Commons Thursday.

The code now prohibits publication or broadcasting of a report of any confession submitted in evidence at a preliminary inquiry until the accused has been discharged or, if committed for trial, his trial has ended.

The new section—Clause 32—would extend this principle to all evidence adduced at preliminary inquiries if the accused so wishes.

This evidence may be published or broadcast after the accused has been discharged or, if committed to stand trial, his trial is completed.

Johnson's Defeat Predicted

ANKARA (AP) — Turkey's best-known fortune teller, Sister Gurcu, predicted Thursday that Lyndon B. Johnson will be defeated in the 1968 U.S. presidential election.

The old lady, a resident of the eastern Turkish city of Diyarbakir, gave her annual predictions for the new year to the daily newspaper Milliyet. She is credited, the paper said, with predicting the assassination of U.S. President John F. Kennedy in 1963 and the 1960 Turkish revolution.

Asked about Johnson, she said: "A disaster will befall him. No measures will help. He will fall from power."

Other predictions by Sister Gurcu: Mrs. John F. Kennedy will marry a "grey-haired" man toward the end of 1968 and an assassination attempt will be made on King Hussein of Jordan.

SHOTS FIRED

Bandits Rob Bank Of $6,000

MONTREAL (CP) — Four bandits escaped with more than $6,000 from a suburban Verdun branch of the Montreal City and District Savings Bank Thursday night while more than 100 customers and 20 employees stood powerless to stop them.

Three of the bandits, armed and hooded, carried out the robbery while the fourth waited in a car, police said. Firing a warning shot into the ceiling of the bank, the holdup men made their entry ordering everyone to "hit the floor."

One bandit stood guard at the door with a machine-gun, another covered the customers and employees with a sawed-off shotgun, and the third, carrying a revolver in one hand and a carton box in the other, rifled three cash drawers.

The bandit who scooped up the money fired a second warning shot towards the counter while fleeing with his two companions, police said.

DOG SNIFFS NARCOTIC IN BRA

LONDON (AP) — A policeman's dog was credited Thursday with sniffing out a supply of marijuana inside a woman's brassiere.

Policeman George Davidson said Pytch, his Labrador, "paid special attention" to Mrs. Mavis Dyges, 29, during a drug raid. Pytch was trained to detect drugs.

A policewoman searched Mrs. Dyges and found 3.816 grams of marijuana.

Mrs. Dyges, mother of seven; her husband, and a third defendant, each was sentenced to 21 months in jail.

WASHINGTON STATE AID REQUESTED

Alaska Seeks Grants for New Ferry Service

OLYMPIA (AP) — A study of the economic feasibility of Washington State co-operating financially to help Alaska extend its new Puget Sound ferry service to a year-around operation was ordered Thursday by Gov. Dan Evans.

The governor told a news conference he was responding to a proposal made in a letter he received the same day from State Rep. Caswell J. Farr, Ferndale Republican.

Evans said he is asking the State Highways Department and the State Toll Bridge Authority to study the economic feasibility of such a plan. A determination of whether it can be done legally would have to come later, he indicated.

He said the state would take steps to see if the waters between Puget Sound and highway," he said, is "essentially an extension of Interstate federal "marine highway" in an attempt to get federal aid. If it could be done, the state could lend equipment to the interstate run, he indicated.

The concept of a "marine

OF TORONTO HIPPIES

New Cult Blows Brains

TORONTO (CP) — A recent cult in the Yorkville area drove many hippies into mental hospitals, Insp. William Pilkington of the Toronto police morality squad said Thursday.

Insp. Pilkington told a Lions

Club luncheon of a "professor" who conducted blackboard lectures in the village and made tape recordings of his students under the hallucinatory drug LSD.

"He ended up by blowing the brains out of most of the students and they ended up in mental hospitals," he said.

Another group, called the Back to the Cave movement, had odd characteristics, he said. "They didn't wash or shave. Intercourse was like shaking hands; abortion was like going to the dentist."

Both groups developed through the use of marijuana, he said. While some claim "pot" is harmless, its use in Yorkville and in Toronto high schools is causing concern among police, health, and school officials.

He said the hippies' use of hashish, a stronger form of marijuana, is of increasing concern. A chemical in hashish makes its kicks 20 times more powerful than LSD.

OTTAWA CHARGES GRITS $2,500 A DAY RENT

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal Party will pay $2,500 a day to rent the new civic centre for a three-day leadership convention here April 4 to 6, Alderman Claude Bennett said Thursday.

There will be extra charges for any chairs, tables or equipment used by the expected 6,000 delegates and observers.

The convention is to elect a leader to succeed Prime Minister Pearson.

Drugs on the Market

A PROTEST BY THE CANADIAN branch of a British drug company against proposed Patent Act amendments was in itself an indictment of the industry. In a letter to Registrar-General John Turner, the company president, Mr. H. C. Balmer, stated that any savings to Canadians through reducing tariff protection against imported drugs would not match the cost of "controlling the influx of hitherto unknown products."

This is the familiar argument against lowering the barrier of patent and trade mark protection behind which the drug companies—and other manufacturers—have sheltered so long. It founders on the fact brought out in parliamentary investigation—as Ottawa correspondent Maurice Western noted on this page only yesterday—that Canadian drug prices are among the highest in the world. If prices can be brought down by allowing imports to compete it would seem to be well worth the cost of extra inspection and testing facilities, particularly since the same facilities could be used to make thorough and extensive tests of domestically produced drugs.

But the most astonishing part of Mr. Balmer's letter was that dealing with his own parent company in Britain. Noting that the firm had subsidiaries in most western countries, he said that many of these companies marketed drugs "under the same marks as we use in Canada." However, he added, the formulation was usually different, "in some cases widely different."

Anyone importing products manufactured by one of these subsidiaries, Mr. Balmer said, "does so at his own peril and at the peril of the Canadian public." Here is a statement that demands explanation. Does it mean, as it seems to, that an international drug company is employing a chaotic labelling system? Is this common to the industry? If so, is there any reason why it should be changed so that people all over the world can benefit from a rational system of labelling?

The international drug industry has been so exposed by the evidence and testimony at hearings in many countries—and notably in the United States where most of the control is vested—that something besides public relations programs is needed to restore its reputation. The obvious answer, for Canada, at least, is to give the consumer a better break by cutting into the industry's competitive shelter, as the government is finally doing in the Patents Act amendment now before Parliament.

Honor to the Pioneers

MILLIONS OF PEOPLE ALL over the world must have followed the fortunes of Mr. Louis Washkansky in Cape Town as he fought for life with history's first successfully transplanted heart. His heroic endurance became a personal thing with everyone, for on his success depended the lives of countless thousands in the future; through his struggle the lives of all of us came to seem a little more secure, for his affliction could become anyone's, just as his cure could become the hope of all afflicted. Few men have better exemplified the philosophy of John Donne that "no man is an island, entire of itself," and that "Any man's death diminishes me, because I am involved in Mankind."

There was more than a usual sense of personal loss, therefore, in the news that Mr. Washkansky had lost his battle for life. But his struggle—and the incomparable skill and daring of Dr. Christian Barnard and his brilliant team—were far from being in vain. We are told that the transplant itself succeeded, the heart beat strongly until the end brought on by pneumonia complications; and that there is every hope for spectacular progress in the future.

Much, of course, remains to be learned. The process of temporarily reducing the body's natural resistance to disease and foreign tissue opens up new problems of survival, but these appear as a challenge rather than a veto. Mr. Washkansky and Dr. Barnard played the part of pioneers in an age of outstanding scientific pioneering, and they will take their place in that select group reserved for the admiration and the gratitude of all mankind.

More Careful Testing, Perhaps?

MR. T. W. HALL, REGIONAL director of Canadian Penitentiary Services, has candidly disclosed one of the vulnerable areas of current penology's concentration on rehabilitation for prisoners. Answering questions on why a convicted murderer escaped from a work farm and why he had not been held in a maximum security prison, Mr. Hall described the efforts made nowadays to return offenders to the ranks of decent citizenship.

It would be easy, he pointed out, to run a prison in which inmates were kept locked up and food was pushed to them through the bars. But this is not the way present day society tries to handle the problem. It tries to correct the faults of the individual and make him once more a useful citizen. That involves a large gamble, because proper rehabilitation cannot be effected by keeping a man locked up.

In the process of attempted reformation prisoners are transferred to institutions considerably less forbidding than maximum security prisons. When they escape, the judgment of those who loosened their fetters is suspect. Mr. Hall frankly admits that a gamble is involved, but 80 per cent of treatments in British Columbia's minimum security establishments have been successful.

That is an encouraging proportion, but the fact remains that the 20 per cent of prisoners who fail to respond may constitute a definite danger to society—a risky ratio of psychological guesswork if they turn out to be violently anti-social. The experts in mental and emotional stability who provide advice on the disposition of prisoners should never lose sight of the conscientious work of police and courts that was necessary to catch dangerous lawbreakers, or of the men, women and children who are the victims of violent men.

The Untwiddled Dials

THE PORTLAND OREGONIAN has given a timely warning to the television industry now considering a trend in viewer reception. Recent surveys have disclosed particularly high popularity for two-hour feature films and such prolonged programs as full baseball and football games. One implication is that viewers do not like dial-twisting.

But the Oregonian's warning does not indicate that viewers are merely becoming too limp to bother twiddling the dials. It points out that the surveys show a good reception for programs of merit. Substance still counts—and some long television shows have historic importance in the industry only as examples of how unpalatable a very big "turkey" can be.

"... no more for him, he says ... he's got to drive ..."

FROM LONDON

By TIM TRAYNOR

Expose of Britain's MI-6

THERE was an illuminating scene here recently when Lord Thomson of Fleet, Canadian-born newspaper magnate, clashed on television with Prime Minister Harold Wilson's former security adviser, Lord Wigg. In attacking Lord Thomson, Lord Wigg displayed acute touchiness about British security and particularly about press treatment of security matters. It was evidence of the current uneasiness in official circles.

Traynor

This uneasiness might be called Philbyitis. It is the result of the recent publication of previously-secret information—including embarrassing details of the treachery of Harold (Kim) Philby, the Soviet spy who reached a high level in the British secret intelligence service, the famous MI-6. It was because the Thomson-owned Sunday Times took a leading role in the "Philby Affair" that Lord Thomson came under attack from his fellow peers.

Lord Wigg's basic, and predictable, complaint was that the disclosures had played into the hands of the Russians. But that is not all. In the affair's aftermath, the government is faced with many imponderables. Decades-old conventions barring the publication of secrets have been swept away and it is no longer clear what limitations on the right to print would be accepted by editors.

Memoirs Rejected

This is the more nerve-wracking because there is plenty of material of the Philby variety which could be dredged up. Philby himself is trying to peddle his memoirs in Britain and could succeed, although Lord Thomson has said he will have nothing to do with them. George Blake, a British traitor living, like Philby, in Moscow, is another who might eventually try to retail an approved Soviet version of his life story.

Of course, the government is not hamstrung. It could put real weight behind Lord Wigg's attack, which was in fact an elaboration of an earlier and more notorious, one by Foreign Secretary George Brown. There is a system whereby press and government representatives classify material as falling under the Official Secrets Act, and the government can prosecute when such material is used.

This is a small comfort, however. Prosecution would court a storm of public indignation. The fact is that much of the secret information which is being revealed is of a type which is not secret in the United States, and some of it had already been published there. (For instance, the names of the heads of MI-6 and of the counter-espionage agency, MI-5, were published by American magazines.)

Eyes Opened

The spy disclosures have, in short, done nothing for the government but a great deal for the public. Britain has had its eyes opened as never before to the depth of secrecy which has been maintained about its security services. It was a matter of record that they had been spectacularly betrayed by such men as Blake and Philby, but the background had been poorly known, and the disclosures have shown just how unsavory a background it was. Finally, a new immediacy has been given to the possibility that Soviet agents are even now ensconced within the security services.

Philby was, of course, the key to it all. Tracing his amazing career from the early '30s to the present, The Sunday Times and The Observer put him and the security services in an entirely new light. They recounted how the common undergraduate flirtation with Communism at Cambridge in the '30s set its stamp on him for life; how he posed as a fascist sympathizer to hide his true allegiance; how he found his way into MI-6 at the outset of the war through upper-class connections; how he ingratiated himself with inept, snobbish sometimes debauched colleagues; how he quickly rose and acquired a staff which included the writer, Malcolm Muggeridge and Graham Greene; how he was appointed to set up a section to spy on the Soviet Union; how he went to Washington as liaison to the CIA after the war; how he had access to top secret information including the fact that Donald Maclean, a foreign office official, was suspected of giving atomic secrets to the Russians; how he came under suspicion of having tipped off Maclean when the latter and Guy Burgess fled to Moscow; how he underwent a secret trial without positive detection; how he was saved from expulsion by the obdurate indulgence of his colleagues; how he had his name cleared for lack of evidence by Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan in Parliament in 1955; how he obtained a journalistic job in Beirut through the foreign office; how he was confronted with evidence of his treachery in 1963 and fled to Moscow; how he settled there as a Soviet secret intelligence official, basking in Soviet gratitude, reminiscing with Maclean about the betrayal of former associates, and advising young Britons to follow in his footsteps.

Vulnerable to Treachery

The impression that is left is that MI-6, far out of the public view, played the espionage game by the rules of an upperclass club, with disastrous results. It was vulnerable to rottenness, treachery and just plain failure. One former member was revealingly quoted as saying that the agency had obtained no significant information from the Soviet Union during the whole period of the '50s.

It is conceivable that there are other Philbys, Communists from the '30s, who have survived and are still in the secret intelligence services. There is no clear indication that this is so, but it is significant that Geoffrey McDermott, former British minister in Berlin with secret service experience, recently raised the possibility that Philby was not the one who tipped off Maclean—that he was not the "third man." The implication is that the man who did it then might be at it yet.

Not the least thought-provoking aspect of the affair was Philby's utter dedication to Communism. His wife Eleanor and British interviewers have said that Philby is completely at home in Moscow. After his defection in 1963 Philby told Eleanor, to whom he was very close, that the Communist party was more important to him than she was. She told The Observer of his "pathetic" desire for Soviet approbation.

Valuable as Baedeker

Much of what he did remains undisclosed, but Eleanor has recalled how his long-time Soviet contact said Philby could never be repaid for it. She has said that for information on British intelligence he must have been "as valuable as a Baedeker."

The other side of the coin is that he was probably responsible for thousands of British deaths. Between them, Philby and Maclean apparently did extensive damage. Maclean, with whose wife, Philby is now living, has emerged as a more dangerous spy than had previously been admitted. He is said to have had access to every key Anglo-American policy decision at the height of the cold war in the late '40s and early '50s. There is reason to believe he informed the Russians of the American decision to localize the Korean War, ruling out an attack on China or a blockade of the Chinese coast. He also had access to the headquarters of the Atomic Energy Commission in Washington, and could have passed on much important atomic information—including details of the uranium ore supply available to the United States, Britain and Canada.

Wraiths of Wallets Walk Again

Jrene Chapman Benson

Through surge and clamour of the teeming shops,
We stalk the elusive gift. The footed bowl
In elegant Lalique might suit Elaine,
And pacify her stupid husband, George.
Quite obviously he spurned the humidor
And she, the pewter mug we sent last year.

Now to the nylons. Tens with cotton feet
For Adelaide and not too tight a beige;
Something discreet for stuffy Ernestine,
And knitted knee pads for her ghoulish aunt.

A contour girdle for the Kerby brat
Who fancies she's a stand-in for Bardot;

And for her mother, wilder than the wind,
Matador pants to match her new decor.
The while ensuing budget hopes are high,
A modernistic Christmas tree to find,
With lacquered birds and bells of amber-glass

To glamorize Louella's Cocktail bore.
The Past is all about us—Still are we Caught in the immediate chaos of the day;
Vassals are we to custom and its chains
Enslave us now. Endurance duly spent,
We totter to the toys and feebly greet
The lovely open season of the Cheque,
When wraiths of ravaged wallets walk again.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"WELL, I DON'T THINK IT'S DISHONEST, I THINK IT'S WORTH A TRY!"

Looking Back

From the Times,
Dec. 22, 1967.

The Victoria Motor Club will make a run on Christmas Day through the suburbs of the city and a photographer will go with them to take views to be used in advertisements.

In the past this manner of advertising the city has been a most effective one. Some very interesting photographs should be taken.

The club secretary was also instructed to forward a number of "Go Slow" and "Keep to the Left" signs to the Oak Bay municipal clerk.

The Birth of Silent Night

FOR many hundreds of millions of people all over the world, a little carol has come to symbolize the essence of the fervour and solemnity of Christmas: "Stille Nacht, heilige Nacht" (Silent night, holy night). Today nobody can tell how many languages and dialects it has been translated into, but it is sung almost everywhere there are Christians.

Countless legends have grown up concerning the origin of the carol. Eighteen books have been written on the subject, eleven dramas, numerous gramophone records have been made of the carol by a variety of singers, from Richard Tauber down to Elvis Presley, and a film has been made about it.

Two simple men, the clergyman Joseph Mohr and the village schoolmaster and organist Franz Xaver Gruber, composed this carol at Oberndorf on the River Salzach, north of the city of Salzburg, on December 24, 1818; they did not live to witness the triumph of their creation.

Joseph Mohr, who wrote the words, was already dead when the Berlin court orchestra set about the task of tracing its origin. King William IV of Prussia is said to have given his music director these instructions after hearing "Stille Nacht" for the first time at the Christmas service in 1853; he is said to have been so touched and impressed that he wanted to find out at all costs who had composed this beautiful carol.

In 1856 the choirmaster of St. Peter's was able to present to the people of Berlin the actual composer of the carol, Franz Xaver Gruber, who was living in Salzburg at that time, employed as an organist, and had meanwhile reached the age of 67.

Different Version

It is said that chance put the choirmaster on the right track. One of the choirboys, called Felix Gruber, sang "Stille Nacht" completely differently to what the choir had been taught. The boy sang in D major instead of C major, as was the custom at that time, and also sang in six-eight time. When asked the reason, Felix answered that the carol was always sung like that at his home, and after all his father ought to know, because he had composed it.

Franz Xaver Gruber, who in the meantime had become the father of twelve children, could not conceal his surprise at such a fuss being made 36 years after the composition of the carol. He wrote a letter to the royal court orchestra about the way in which "Stille Nacht" came into being, enclosing a complete manuscript of the text and music in the original Oberndorf version. Today this letter of Franz Xaver Gruber's is the most important authentic document for research on the carol.

The famous carol came into being as a last-minute makeshift. In the old Church of St. Nicholas at Oberndorf, the organ failed once again in 1818, just at Christmas time, and so badly that there was no chance of its being put in order again for the carol service. What was to be done?

For Guitar

A carol service entirely without music would have disappointed the churchgoers. They could sing to guitar music, but for this no one knew a really suitable carol. Then the priest, Joseph Mohr, came to his friend, Gruber, at noon on December 24 and handed him a text.

"Couldn't a melody of two-voices and a guitar be arranged for this?" he asked. Gruber promised to try and find a tune for the words. In the evening the little carol was finished, and was sung for the first time at the carol service.

The congregation, consisting for the most part of Salzach boatmen and farmers from the surrounding district, were so taken by the melody that they tried to sing the refrain themselves after the second verse. From that time on, "Silent night" was sung at every Christmas festival in the Oberndorf church.

Here it was heard seven years later by the Tyrolean organ-builder Carl Mauracher, who had come to Oberndorf at long last to repair the church organ. He took the new carol back home with him to the Zillertal, and there it was sung and made known by two well-known groups of singers, the glove-making Strasser family and the Rainers, a family of butchers.

Explosive Popularity

At a concert given by the Strassers in Leipzig, where the carol again enjoyed great success, A. R. Friese wrote the carol down from memory. It is said—and shortly afterwards had it printed and published in a collection of four Tyrolean carols. From then on the popularity of the carol spread enormously.

Today, in the region around Salzburg, the two creators of the loveliest of all carols are held in honor. In place of the former Church of St. Nicholas at Oberndorf, a small memorial chapel has been built, where every year, before many visitors from all over the world, the children of Oberndorf sing "Stille Nacht" in the Advent and Christmas period, accompanied by the same guitar that Franz Xaver Gruber once used in this place to compose the carol. During the remainder of the year this guitar is kept in a place of honor, in the municipal museum at Hallein.

An Office Machine Romance

By W. J. WEATHERBY
The Manchester Guardian

"When this circuit learns your job what are you going to do?" — Advertisement on the New York subways.

He had been in the navy and looked it. Walking through the office with a stiff roll, shoulders back, grin forward, ingratiating himself with the girls, the boys, the bosses and even the machines.

It was strange for such a seemingly gregarious man — he told stories and laughed at other people's jokes in the lunchroom — to enjoy so much being on his own. Yet he would roll down the corridor with every appearance of someone going to a party. One forgot of course that he wasn't alone: he was with the copying machine.

I only appreciated this one day when I went to the men's room down the corridor and the door of the copying room was open. He was sitting head forward over the machine as if deep in conversation with it.

Another time I saw him putting a fresh supply of paper in the machine. He was like a farmer feeding one of his animals. He could not have been more gentle with it. And once when the machine broke down, the relationship seemed even closer — more like a mother with a child.

He came running in to tell the boss and insisted on the engineer — the doctor? — coming at once. After the machine started again and the engineer left, I saw him massaging it the same way I once saw a racing driver rubbing the hood of his winning racing-car. A wife could not have asked for more in public.

I can't frankly talk about a man loving a machine because I'm old fashioned and still think rigidly of love in terms of one person for another, but in my heart I know it's possible, because I've seen a man love a copying machine and I also witnessed what happened to him when they finally replaced the machine with a newer model.

He no longer had his lunch in the lunchroom nor did he tell stories nor laugh at other people's jokes. He didn't bother ingratiating himself any more with the girls or the boys or the bosses. He wouldn't do anybody else's copying and the new machine was forever breaking down when he was operating it, so that in time the supervisor wouldn't let him use it. He began to come late for work and to take more and more days off.

At luncheon he would sometimes go to a local bar on Eighth Avenue and come back very boisterous but in an impersonal way so that it made him even more detached than usual from the rest of us.

They gave other causes for what had happened to him, but I knew better, though I could never tell anybody. It's a love that our society doesn't yet recognize, and so it's better not to talk about it but just to go about one's own business.

But when I am around copying machines now, and adding machines and computers and even automobiles, I can't help looking at them differently. I don't like to be alone with them, but it is getting harder and harder not to be in New York City.

Rumors From Moscow Stir Diplomatic Circles

By ANATOLE SHUB
The Washington Post

President Antonin Novotny.

There is little doubt that the latter is in trouble, but he has survived serious trouble several times before, and survived even more easily the rumors of his imminent fall which have been appearing two or three times a year since 1960.

Another story is that Brezhnev, perhaps accompanied by Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny or Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, will go to Rumania next month to attempt to prevent an outright break between the two countries. The Rumanians know nothing of such an early visit, and beside Brezhnev is also supposed to visit Egypt in January.

Also a plenum of the Soviet Central Committee will be held in a few days (according to some rumors) or else in mid-January (according to others).

The plenum could result in a broad shakeup of the ideological sector of the party apparatus. Evyot N. Demichev, current central committee secretary supposedly in charge of ideology, is at the center of these rumors. One set has him being removed altogether, another set has him being slightly demoted to replace Katerina Furtseva as minister of culture. (That lady's demise has also been prematurely reported several times in the past.)

The alleged "struggle" over ideology reflects a more important political struggle.

pro-Soviet underdeveloped states, and the like. Their reports, or reports of reports, cannot be automatically dismissed, for at least three reasons:

—Some of them have been sensationally right in the past.

—Some of their rumors are known to have been politically inspired with definite ends in view.

—Even agitation or nervousness in these politically sensitive circles is an interesting fact in its own right.

Of the agitation in the past week there can be little doubt. The rumors produced in this brief period have been more copious and contradictory than at any time this year. They have included stories to the effect that Communist Party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev, who paid a sudden unexplained visit to Prague, Czechoslovakia, days ago, was going back there

... may be ousted?

Thus, the State Committee on Cultural Relations with Foreign Countries, which is apparently being abolished or at least curtailed, is being linked through its directors to Politburo member Alexander Shelepin — who is therefore assumed to be losing ground. (A number of other signs, equally inconclusive, point to his gaining ground.)

Most sensational of all, "this week's" alleged central committee plenum will finally produce the big political shakeup freely predicted at regular intervals ever since the current "collective leadership" took over from Nikita Khrushchev in October 1964. The rumor sweeping Moscow is that the shakeup would include the ouster of both Podgorny and Kosygin.

Most of these rumors will probably prove untrue, but nearly all are inherently plausible. For example, difference between the moderate Podgorny and some harder line Politburo members seem undeniable, and there was fresh "evidence" for them this week: An apparent protégé of his, Alexander Muzhitsky, who was criticized by name in Pravda a fortnight ago, appeared in good standing Monday night with a long article in Izvestia on strengthening the work of the Soviets (which Podgorny nominally heads).

One factor making for confusion among Western appraisers of such rumors is Communist information policy itself. Thus, when Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko went to Warsaw two weeks ago, it was announced that he and Polish Foreign Minister

... also on way out?

Adam Rapacki were discussing European security and the German problem. Yet Monday it was announced in Warsaw that Gromyko, Rapacki and the other Communist East European foreign ministers would be meeting there to discuss the Middle East. Hardly anyone here now believes that preparation of this new meeting was not the real purpose of Gromyko's earlier visit.

The Soviet leadership does have a number of very serious problems before it which do involve painful or "lesser evil" solutions on which instant unanimity, here and elsewhere, is difficult to achieve.

Economics Of Medicine Challenged

By FRANK C. PORTER

WASHINGTON — The federal government was charged with contributing to deteriorating medical care because of its "obsession" with medical research.

The accusation, by Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, was backed by a panel of doctors, some of whom strongly attacked the present "fee for service" concept, the American Medical Association and what they said was the rigidity and waste of much medical teaching.

Their comments at a news conference called by Rosenthal were seen as a foretaste of hearings a House government operations subcommittee plans to make into medical economics next year.

Rosenthal called it "disgraceful" that the United States, commonly assumed to have the best medical care in the world, ranks 18th in infant mortality rates. With 24.8 deaths per 1,000, it has nearly double the rate of front-running Sweden (13.3) and is behind Czechoslovakia (21.2) and Nationalist China (22.5).

The most vehement attack on the fee system came from Dr. Samuel Standard, professor of clinical surgery at New York University. After an oblique reference to unnecessary operations, he suggested that "society" remove the temptation where a man profits from another man's illness. Most doctors are well-meaning and honest, he added, but there are many who are not.

Standard said the government, in formulating health policy, has been "misled" by the American Medical Association, which he said "has thought too much of itself and not of those whom it should serve."

Rosenthal similarly chided AMA president Milford O. Rouse for having said: "We can, therefore, concentrate our attention on the single obligation to protect the American way of life. That way can be described in one word: capitalism."

"I would have thought that proper medical care was AMA's 'single obligation,'" Rosenthal said. Noting that the federal government spends $1.4 billion a year on medical research, Rosenthal said, "the plain truth is that medical research has been oversold to the point where it is unquestionably injuring medical education and medical services."

Dr. Carlton Chapman, dean of the school of medicine at Dartmouth College called much physician training "rigidly structured, wasteful, expensive." He proposed that the usual nine years from college entrance to completion of internship could be shortened.

Britain's 'Mad Mike' Hoare Reveals Mercenary Feuding

By COLIN LEGUM

LONDON—Half a dozen mercenary leaders in Europe and Africa are engaged in a deadly feud over their role in Nigeria's civil war.

Both the Nigerian federal military government and the Biafran secessionists have had dealings with the mercenary leaders who made their reputations in the fighting in the Congo as pilots, technicians and military advisers. The Biafran leader, Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu, is reported to be willing to pay up to $2,400 a month for the right men.

But the politics of the Nigerian civil war have spread to the mercenary leaders themselves — making former close comrades into rivals and opponents, and turning former bitter enemies into allies.

Both sides in Nigeria appear to have ignored the recent decision taken by the Organization of African Unity (OAU) permanently banning mercenaries from the continent. This followed the negotiations to evacuate Col. (Black Jack) Schramme and his 111 mercenaries from Rwanda after their attempt to topple President Joseph Mobutu of the Congo.

MAJOR HOARE

with Schramme's men in Kisangani.

Major Denard is now back in the mercenary business in Portuguese Angola, where he commands about 250 men supported by two helicopters and armored cars.

Odd Irony

One of the strangest ironies of the situation is that South African, Rhodesian and Egyptian pilots are now engaged together in helping to fly and maintain the Russian MiG fighters and Czech Delphin recently delivered to the Nigerian federal authorities.

Last week a British mercenary officer Capt. V. C. Martin, was reported by the Biafrans to have been killed when he led a strong party of federal troop infiltrators into Bonny, the island in the Bay of Biafra which is the site of valuable oil installations.

The great bust-up in the strange world of mercenary politics was brought to the surface by an article written by the "Mad Major," Mike Hoare, in The Times of London. For the first time he publicly disclosed that he had visited first the Biafran side, and then the federal side which he claims he received from both sides to help in their struggle.

With Ibos

Although Major Hoare admits his sympathies were with the Ibos, who led the Biafran secession, when he visited Nigeria, in the article he urged: "The last thing that is required is the intervention of mercenary troops on either side."

Announcing he had himself decided to take no part in it, he appealed to his former comrades to keep out because he felt that mercenary intervention "would aggravate the situation and lead to an alarming escalation, not excluding the possibility of Cuban or Russian troops. The conflict must be kept down to size, local and African."

Major Hoare's article was probably directed mainly against his former best friend and deputy in the Congo, Maj. Alistair Wicks, who had been responsible for his going to Biafra. Major Wicks had begun recruiting officers in London to help the Biafrans. Wicks, it seems, was not approached by Colonel Ojukwu in the first place, but by an influential group of industrialists with an economic stake in Biafra.

Federal Client

Less directly Hoare's article was aimed also at John Peters, former sergeant, now lieutenant-colonel, who claims he has the federal government on his books as a client.

Alistair Wicks operates from his apartment in London and from the Praia-Mar hotel in Lisbon. Visitors to his London apartment are admitted only after surveillance through a peephole in the front door.

John Peters — who succeeded Major Hoare as commander of the Fifth Commando in The Congo — now operates as a real estate broker in London, but admitted to me that he keeps a register of 600 mercenaries ready for service at any time "to suitable clients."

Africa, Portugal, France and Rhodesia opened up the secret underworld of the mercenaries:

"I have within the past few weeks spoken to Major Wicks following an interview last September, and have been on 48-hour stand-by to fly to Lisbon, and from there to Port Harcourt in Biafra to take up a post as an officer in the Biafran mercenary army," my informant disclosed. He wishes to remain anonymous.

"The method adopted to recruit me and other officers I know of — all British army ex-regulars — was through the unwitting agency of the Officers' Association in London.

"I was told that there was an urgent need for army officers, mainly pilots or others experienced in air transport, with offers of $960 a month.

Stalemate

"I was told that the role of mercenaries was to help the Biafran army retake Enugu and to roll back the federal troops to beyond Biafra's frontier in order to force a stalemate which would then enable negotiations to take place.

"This seemed to me, at first, to be a reasonable proposition. But I now believe that mercenaries will have the effect of increasing the scale of fighting in Nigeria. To that extent I agree with 're-are."

The secretary of the Officers' Association — a highly reputable organization devoted to promoting the interests of ex-British officers — was surprised to learn that his office had been used to recruit mercenaries. He produced a record of their transactions with Major Wicks, who had approached them on Oct. 27 in the usual way of prospective employers for unemployed officers.

'Air Charter'

Major Wicks had stated his business as "not developed" but disclosed that he was in the air charter business proposing to start a new company "based on a new idea not necessarily in aviation." The job-sheet adds: "At this stage he does not wish to divulge more for obvious reasons but full details will be given at the interview" — i.e. to applicants.

The refusal to divulge was, the secretary assured me, usual practice. The request was for "junior executives" up to the age of 35. Qualifications listed are "responsible ex-officers who need not have any business experience but must have had previous administrative experience."

By November Major Wicks was able to inform the Officers' Association that all his vacancies had been filled.

My informant, supported by another of Major Wicks' recruits, confirmed that Wicks said he was running a company known as Air Transport Africa which was engaged in flying arms as well as mercenaries and supplies to Port Harcourt from Lisbon.

The British government, a Commonwealth Relations Office spokesman told me, is totally opposed to any British subjects being recruited to fight for either side in Nigeria.

No Power

"But," he added, "we have no legal power to stop it. The Foreign Enlistment Act doesn't apply to Commonwealth countries, so we can't take people's passports away from them, or prosecute anybody for recruiting personnel."

It would require fresh legislation — which would take some time to prepare and get through parliament — to stop mercenaries being recruited for Nigeria.

But, the spokesman added, everything possible was being done to discourage recruiting by persuasion. "We'd like nothing better than to stop it. But first we must identify the people who are involved in such operations."

In the Leadership Race Any Number Can Play

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA — How many Liberals may go after Lester Pearson's job? Would you believe ... a dozen? And not all of them men?

Six, eight, ten or a dozen, this contest is going to be unlike anything the Liberal Party has seen before. It'll be most like that free-for-all in Maple Leaf Gardens last September, but without a John Diefenbaker to be dumped. In 1948 Louis St. Laurent was chosen — but Mackenzie King's hand was on his shoulder. In 1958 Lester Pearson was chosen, and Uncle Loole's hand was on his shoulder. In 1968 Mike Pearson has promised to keep his hands in his pockets.

If Pearson were to finger anyone it would be Health and Welfare Minister MacEachen, whom he loves like a son. He sees in MacEachen the kind of little liberal the party needs to carry on in the Pearson tradition.

But I'm told he doesn't dare give his blessing openly to MacEachen. Such favoritism might rend the cabinet with rivalry and rancor, and bring on a collapse of Pearson's authority. This could set the stage for the government's defeat in the House at the hands of the opposition majority.

Besides, Pearson probably realizes that even with his endorsement MacEachen would be a long shot. MacEachen lost political stature when the Tories swept Nova Scotia in 1965, and when Medicare was postponed in 1966.

The Liberals will have a plethora of candidates, and should count them all as blessings. The lustreless image of the Tory party a year ago was much improved as candidates crisscrossed the country proclaiming their ideas and hopes for a better Canada under their Conservative leadership.

The fact that late-star Robert Stanfield was the eventual winner does not lessen the early birds' service to the party. Granted, the Tories needed this publicity more than do the in-office Grits. But the spotlight on individual Liberal candidates rather than that amorphous organization known as "the government" can do the Grits nothing but good.

These men want to succeed Pearson: Foreign Minister Martin, Transport Minister Hellyer, Sharp, MacEachen, Registrar General Turner, Agriculture Minister Greene, Trade Minister Winters.

Outside the field of government policy to which they are wedded by the rule of cabinet solidarity, what are their principles, their beliefs, their offerings to the country? What kind of prime ministers would they make? The contest will help the voting delegates and the people assess them.

Apart from these seven almost certain starters, as many more are flirting with the idea of running, or are being encouraged by others to run. Some well know they won't win, but see political advantage and personal satisfaction in being also-rans, with blocks of votes to trade after the first or second ballots.

Those being encouraged include Immigration Minister Marchand and Justice Minister Trudeau.

Those perhaps hoping for encouragement include Revenue Minister Benson, Premiers Robichaud and Thatcher, and Eric Kierans.

The list isn't exhaustive. For one thing, it contains no women — a deficiency that may well be filled by the time April rolls around. After all, half of all Liberals are women.

Waring

Now Calvert is drying up the gin business.

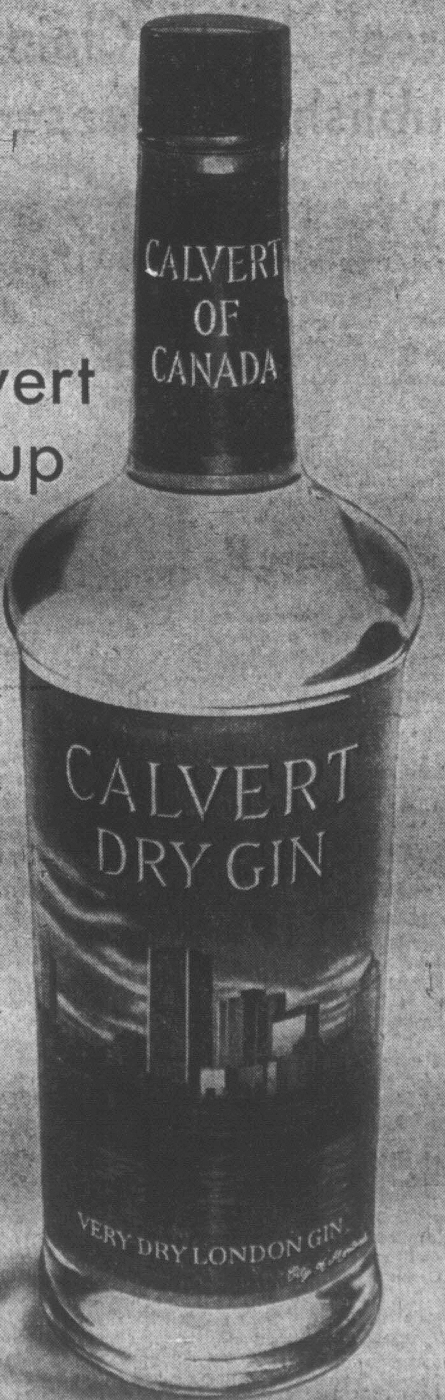

As far as Calvert is concerned, nobody has ever made a gin dry enough for Canadian tastes.

Until now. Our new gin is more than very dry. It's very very dry. And we're not keeping it a secret as to how we did it.

First, we went to Borneo for the tart, unripened Cubeb berry. Then we went to the parched Mediterranean for pods of St. John's bread.

These are the ingredients that make our gin so dry. And as far as we know, nobody else has ever used them before.

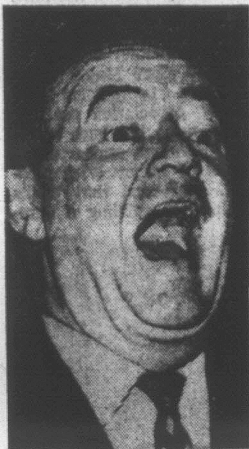

So try our new gin. Not only is it very very dry, it's also very very good.

'FIGHTING THE GOOD FIGHT'

Humphrey to Lead Attack Against McCarthy Action

HUMPHREY... won't be dumped

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey is reported to have been assigned the job of leading the counter-attack against Senator Eugene J. McCarthy's challenge to President Johnson's re-nomination in 1968.

Humphrey, sources suggested Thursday, will be the chief administration pitcher in what they see as a campaign double-header: one covering the primary election period, and other against the Republican nominee in the regular fall campaign.

The assignment, said a knowledgeable administration source, will make "very remote" the speculation Johnson would dump Humphrey as his running mate in 1968.

Humphrey, said the source, "is the administration's strongest advocate, on Vietnam and other issues. More than anybody else he's been out there fighting the good fight and he'll be the one leading the charge."

As the strategy shapes up now, the sources said, Humphrey will do most of the traveling, oratory and hand-to-hand combat. Meanwhile, as one source put it, "the president will be the president."

In other words, Johnson will have the White House, with all its limelight, as a campaign platform.

In the pre-convention phase of the campaigning, Humphrey plans to visit "all the critical states," another source said.

Humphrey already has struck at McCarthy, his old colleague in Minnesota's Democratic-Farmer-Labor party.

At a meeting Dec. 9 of more than 1,000 Minnesota party officials, Humphrey in effect accused McCarthy of short-circuiting party unity. And the party's state central committee adopted a resolution supporting Johnson and Humphrey.

FULBRIGHT

'War Not Worth Price We Pay'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator J. William Fulbright of Arkansas is telling his constituents U.S. involvement in Vietnam is a mistake and "the best support we can give our troops is to seek an end to the fighting by a negotiated settlement."

"I am convinced from all the evidence presented thus far this war is not worth the price we are paying," said Fulbright, who will be running for re-election next year.

He added, in a report Thursday to his constituents:

"This was not a case of aggression, as we have been led to believe, but rather a civil war between two factions of Vietnamese.

"Our involvement has been a mistake and we seem unwilling to acknowledge that mistake and proceed to a settlement of some sort."

RELEASES STATEMENT

Fulbright's letter on Vietnam came a day after the Senate foreign relations committee, which he heads, made public the statement of a top administration official that resolutions seeking congressional support on the war were drafted in advance of a North Vietnamese naval engagement which led to action by the Senate and the House of Representatives.

The Sept. 20, 1966 testimony of William P. Bundy, assistant secretary of state, dealt with preliminary drafts of the so-called Gulf of Tonkin resolution. That measure, adopted by Congress on Aug. 7, 1964, declared support of "all necessary measures" to repel aggression in Vietnam.

Johnson proposed the measure and Congress approved it after the administration reported North Vietnamese torpedo boats had attacked U.S. destroyers in the Gulf of Tonkin on Aug. 2 and 4, 1964.

DRAFTS EARLIER

"We had contingent drafts, which however did not very closely resemble the draft, for some time prior to that," Bundy told the foreign relations committee.

"What do you mean," Fulbright asked him, "prior to when?"

"Prior to August, 1964," Bundy said. "But this is a matter of normal contingency planning. No serious thought had been given to it, to the best of my knowledge, prior to the Gulf of Tonkin."

Bundy said he personally prepared one advance draft. He said it was normal planning and common procedure that led the administration to make ready drafts of a proposed resolution of congressional support—in case "things might take a more drastic turn."

Fulbright has argued that expansion of the U.S. role in the Vietnam war to its current dimensions never was contemplated by Congress when it approved the resolution.

Fulbright said in his report to constituents he has been accused of "performing a disservice to my country" by questioning U.S. policy. But he said debate on such issues as Vietnam is the essence of decision-making in a free society.

Greek Junta Claims Publisher Released

LONDON (AP) — Greece's leading woman publisher claimed today that she slipped past her guards and escaped from house arrest in Athens a week ago, but the military junta in her homeland claimed she was released last Friday and was free to come or go at will.

Mrs. Helen Vlachos, a conservative, arrived in London Thursday. She told reporters today she dyed her grey hair black, changed her hair style, left her glasses off and got past a guard outside her apartment door and possibly one outside her apartment building.

But in Athens, the Greek minister of public order, I Tzevelos, told reporters: "She was released from house arrest on Friday."

"She was free to come and go. She did not ask for permission to leave the country, but had she done so we would not have hampered her."

The woman left behind her husband and two sons, 19 and 20 years old. Asked if she feared reprisals against them, she replied: "I am not happy about that."

Mrs. Vlachos said King Constantine's attempt to overthrow Greece's military dictatorship was "amateurish."

WAS IMPOSSIBLE

"Everybody in Greece knew about it," she said. "It had to fail. It was impossible."

She said after the king's counter-coup failed, she decided to leave Greece because "I would have to wait for a long time for something to happen again." She said she would apply for political asylum in Britain.

In an interview Thursday with the BBC, the 55-year-old woman said she will fight the "mediocre and ignorant" leaders of the Greek military dictatorship.

"I feel I can be more useful to the Greek cause abroad than under house arrest in Athens," she declared.

Mrs. Vlachos closed her daily newspapers, Kathimerini and Messimerini, immediately after the April coup that brought a junta of three colonels into power and their censors into newspaper offices. Until freedom of the press is restored she said, her papers will stay shut.

MRS. HELEN VLACHOS... in London

Despite the government's anger, Mrs. Vlachos kept criticizing it throughout the summer. The colonels' censorship methods showed internationally recognized stupidity," she said, and later called two members of the junta "mediocre and ignorant men."

This remark led to her arrest Sept. 28 on charges of insulting the regime and disobeying a military order. She was released pending trial, but the government placed her under house arrest five days later.

Mrs. Vlachos apparently walked into the BBC overseas services building in London unannounced. She told an interviewer she felt the situation in Greece would not change for several months and that she fled after becoming convinced her trial never would take place.

Censorship in Greece restricted reporting of King Constantine's attempt to lead a revolt and his flight to Rome but the junta allowed newspapers to publish today—two days later—the text of the monarch's statement that he would return to Athens if the regime gave assurances of restoring democracy.

Gaglardi 'Bit Too Big For Britches'

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Highways minister Gaglardi was criticized Thursday night by speakers at a public forum on the Lytton ferry dispute.

More than 80 people attended the meeting, sponsored by the Kamloops labor council, to ask for an improved ferry service for 262 residents who need water transportation from the west bank of the Fraser River to this south central British Columbia community.

William Hartley, New Democratic Party MLA for Yale-Lillooet said the highways minister has the "poorest record of any member in the House."

"Even here in Kamloops, mothers were forced to picket his house to get a city crosswalk," Mr. Gaglardi has got a bit too big for his britches.

"He has often said it's a free country. Yes, it's free enough for people to have to walk across a railway bridge and get killed."

Ruby Dunstan, chairman of the Anxious Mothers of Lytton Committee, reminded the meeting that four persons drowned last summer when their car toppled off the ferry.

She said Indian school children have to be lifted onto the ferry because it does not reach the ramp. People in Lytton cannot go to night classes or work shifts because the ferry stops operating at 7 p.m.

The forum endorsed a labor council resolution to prepare a brief for presentation at the next session of the B.C. legislature and organize a lobbying campaign in Victoria.

'Republicans Can Win If Rockefeller Runs'

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., leader of the non-violent Negro movement, said Thursday Governor Rockefeller of New York is the only Republican who could split Negro and labor votes next year and defeat President Lyndon Johnson.

Even though Rockefeller could win, King said, he probably won't be nominated "because the Republicans have a kind of chronic obsession for losing."

MEN SHARE MOTORCYCLE

CHICAGO (AP)—A magistrate borrowed a cue from King Solomon Thursday and divided a motorcycle between two men, each claiming the bike as his.

Magistrate Vincent J. Todryk awarded the frame, transmission and wheels to Frank Affetto, 43, a policeman who said the motorcycle was stolen from him two years ago.

Robert Waldey, 34, an electrician, got the engine and windshield, richly adorned with decals, and tassled saddlebag.

1968 Year For Action

QUEBEC (CP) — Cultural Affairs Minister Jean-Noel Tremblay suggested Thursday the New Year's resolution of French-speaking Canadians should be to escalate efforts for a new constitution.

Mr. Tremblay, one of Premier Daniel Johnson's constitutional advisors said in a holiday statement:

"If 1967 has been a year of awareness for French Canada, 1968 must be the year of accomplishments, including, among others, a new constitution."

"We now are better informed in Canada about the will of Quebec to be itself, to increase its fields of action and to develop its cultural wealth."

"This is why we believe that in 1968 Quebecers must accentuate their efforts toward a complete recasting of the constitution to give Quebec the instruments it needs to affirm its national personality."

BABY JOAN . . . healthy, happy

'A FAMILY AFFAIR'

Wait Has Home for Christmas

DUNCAN — A blue-eyed baby girl who was abandoned on a doorstep five weeks ago will spend her first Christmas in a truly home-like atmosphere.

A Duncan family, with a number of children, will care for her until an adoption can be arranged.

Child welfare authorities here would not identify the foster parents, but said the baby is healthy and happy and will be well cared for.

"Christmas there will be a family affair," said welfare worker Elizabeth McKierahan.

No one knows the identity of the baby's parents. She was just a few hours old when nurse Daphne Hoyland found her, wrapped in two towels, on her doorstep.

The baby was taken to Cowichan District Hospital where she soon captured the hearts of the nurses and staff. They named her Joan, after the supervisor on duty at the time she was admitted.

Child welfare authorities made a public plea for the mother to contact them, but no one came forward. However, they received numerous phone calls and letters from people who wanted to adopt the baby.

"We told them to apply through the normal channels," said Peter Clugston of the Duncan child welfare office. "To shield the baby from publicity, we may look for a permanent foster home somewhere away from Duncan."

ANTIDOTE RUSHED
BY POLICE RELAY

NANAIMO—Two Nanaimo youngsters are in satisfactory condition in hospital here after police rushed from Victoria an antidote for an overdose of iron pills.

Regan Seward, two, and his sister Roberta, three, of 260 Eaton Street, ate 58 of the pills after they mistook them for candy.

The pills can be toxic to the brain and heart when taken in overdose proportions. Four police cars drove in relays to rush Dresfal, an antidote, from Victoria.

The children will remain in hospital for another day or two.

RESCUE ATTEMPT

Medal Awarded
Heroic Student

PORT ALBERNI—A 21-year-old university student from here will be awarded a medal for bravery for his part in an unsuccessful lifesaving attempt in a howling Georgia Straits gale last January.

Cody Good, a student at the University of British Columbia, was cited for his efforts in trying to save the life of a woman caught in a gale while in a small boat with her husband near Nanaimo.

The youth was a passenger aboard the ferry Queen of Burnaby when the craft was sighted foundering and the rescue attempt made.

Efforts by crew members failed and finally Cody was lowered over the side of the ferry in a chair to catch hold of the woman.

The boy managed to hold on to the woman until others could haul her aboard. She died from exposure shortly after.

The husband drowned only feet from the side of the ferry while crew and passengers were trying to rescue him.

Presentation of Mr. Cody's medal will be made in Edmonton Jan. 5, by Lieutenant-Governor J. W. Grant MacEwan, on behalf of the Alberta insurance companies that awarded the medal.

New Law Due
On Sheep
Compensation?

NORTH COWICHAN — Coun. Margaret Robertson made a plea this week on behalf of farmers who lose sheep to dogs. She asked in municipal council how farmers were going to be assured of a resumption of compensation paid out under the Sheep Protection Act.

Mrs. Robertson said: "Dogs are still a problem to farmers and sheep are being killed all the time in various parts of the municipality."

Reeve Donald Morton said the government will likely be amending the act in January to revive the payment of compensation but the legislation will be permissive.

SET UP FUNDS

"I understand councils will be given power to set up funds as used to be the case."

"From now on emotional councillors will persuade councils to set up a fund."

"The virtues of such a fund can be argued and I'm not convinced on either side."

"We are becoming more and more urbanized and should be tougher on dogs, but I'm not sure whether we should as a council pay compensation or leave it as a private matter."

Reeve Morton said the possible amendment in the act is being pressed by agricultural areas such as Langley which are severely affected by the rampaging of dogs among sheep.

FRAUD
ADMITTED

SHAWNIGAN LAKE—William James Ryan, 23, of Portland, Ore., pleaded guilty here Thursday to two counts of fraud involving theft over $50 and use of a stolen credit card.

Ryan was remanded to Jan 17 for sentence.

The charges were laid following two incidents at the Mill Bay Esso gas station where items valued at about $250 were purchased with a credit card.

Sewer Plan Meets
Federal Requests

LAKE COWICHAN—Pollution Control Board approval for the village's proposed $560,000 sewer installation came a step nearer this week.

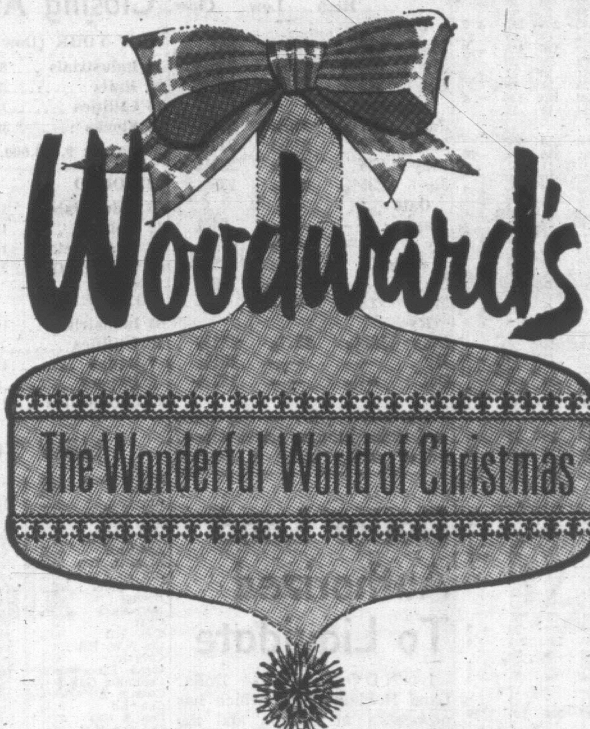

Village council intimated that two recommendations of the federal fisheries department have already been incorporated in their engineer's plans.

Coun. Herb Halliday said the amount of chlorine used to treat effluent will be in the ratio of one part chlorine to 500,000 parts discharge as recommended.

Village clerk Bill Chappell said: "The department's wishes are met by us having the effluent piped all the way to the river and not discharged into an open ditch."

Mr. Chappell said: "We intend to co-operate with the fisheries department in every way we can."

IN FAR NORTH

Mining Boom Will Continue

EDMONTON (CP) — Development of mineral resources in the Yukon and Northwest Territories boomed in 1967, and promises to boom even more in 1968, says a year-end report of the Alberta and Northwest Chamber of Mines.

In 1967 there were significant finds of silver and gold, with development in lead, zinc, copper, asbestos and silver.

Of the Yukon, the report says the "potential mineral wealth... promises to make it one of the most active mining areas in Canada in 1968."

In the Northwest Territories, International Utilities plans an accelerated development program for the Echo Bay mine it purchased in 1967 in the Port Radium area. The company says a rich vein of silver was tapped in 1967 and a pitchblende has also been encountered.

Coppermine River Ltd. plans to spend $725,000 on an early 1968 drilling program on its Coppermine River property, the money to come from five companies including PCE Explorations.

PCE is involved in three other ventures in the same area. Its 1968 plans include acquiring and exploring more than 1,800 claims in the area.

GOLD IN ARCTIC

Still farther north, in the Bathurst Inlet-Coronation Gulf area, several companies are working on gold showings, while Galena Holdings, an Edmonton-based company, is testing what it calls high-grade lead showings.

Roberts Mining, a United States firm, is continuing exploration of a gold-silver find in the area, and Shield Resources is bulk sampling on its Clan Lake claim, and has shipped 1,200 tons of ore out to be milled.

In the Yukon, New Imperial Mines near Whitehorse opened a mine in June with a daily production of 2,500 tons. It says the vein shows 6,000,000 tons of copper ore accessible to open pit mining, with another 500,000 tons available to underground extraction.

Cassiar Asbestos also has a new mine near Dawson, from which it is already shipping asbestos fibre.

Kerr-Addison's lead-zinc deposits in the Vangorda Creek area hold about 9,000,000 tons of ore, and the company is drilling on a second zone at Swim Lake. The total potential of the area has been estimated at more than 75,000,000 tons of lead-zinc ore.

STAKES 2,400 CLAIMS

Anvil Mining is in the same area developing the Dymasty Cyprus property, and has staked more than 2,400 claims with what it says has a possible potential of 50,000,000 tons of lead-zinc-silver ore. Open pit operation appears feasible.

Mount Nanson Mines is completing an access to its silver-gold property 40 miles west of Carmack and underground development work discloses a possible 173,000 tons of ore on the main property with another 110,000 tons on an adjacent property.

Natural gas has been found on the Peel Plateau in the Yukon, and the report says, more than 66,000,000 barrels of oil may be under the permafrost throughout the Arctic.

The report says this oil, "if ever tapped, would provide the cheap fuel needed for the development of hard-rock mines and other industries, and be a reliable source of oil for Europe."

SURVEYING the new headquarters of the Regional District Board, secretary-treasurer William Long feels that at long last he belongs. Until recently the board was a waif in municipal circles, having its headquarters in a dingy Government Street building and meeting once a month in the Saanich Municipal Council chamber. Municipal representatives were welcomed to the new district offices above the Village Fair in Bastion Square and shown the new board room which will now be home. The board room will also be used by the Capital Region Planning Board. Oldtimers around the city may find it difficult to believe, but the sharply modern quarters are an indication of what local businessman Bill Enman has done with historic Burnes' House—or what was more latterly known as the Duncan Building.

N.Y. EXCHANGE OPEN TO CANADIAN FIRMS

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Stock Exchange has opened its doors to Canadian investment companies to enjoy full membership, thus breaking a 28-year rule that member firms must be owned at least 55 per cent by Americans.

The change is evidence of increasing United States awareness of the need for foreign and Canadian investment to maintain its position as a world leader.

It is expected that at least one Canadian firm will take the opportunity of having a seat on the New York Exchange. One Canadian firm, J. R. Timmins, is already a member of the New York Exchange, but its membership dates back to the era when no such restrictions against foreign firms were in force.

Britons on Yule Shopping Spree

LONDON (CP)—Britons are spending for Christmas as if money were going out of style—perhaps because it is, with a devalued pound and an imminent crackdown on consumers.

Despite the recent depressing economic news, the British have been ransacking the shops for Christmas gifts and goodies on an unprecedented scale. Pound notes in circulation the week before Christmas—a guide to spending—stood at an all-time high of £3,160,100,000 ($8,151,457,000), almost £100,000,000 above the peak reached at Christmas last year.

Consensus of gleefully surprised merchants and troubled economic experts is that the retail bonanza is partly a result of devaluation last month and partly deliberate defiance of slump conditions.

Aware that devaluation will push up prices, many Britons appear to be cashing in on what some stores pointedly advertise as "pre-devaluation prices—while present stocks last."

The stocking-up theory is supported by bustling demand for such normally unchristian items as furniture, household appliances and carpets.

One big Oxford Street department store reports furniture sales up 38 per cent on last December. Fashionable Harrods of Knightbridge says demand is for electrical goods, fur coats and other expensive imports that will rise in price.

Others retailers detect an "eat-drink-and-be-merry" attitude among customers in advance of rugged new year austerity measures, which will include a crackdown on consumer spending.

There are few signs in the most populous parts of Britain that the country has just had a brush with bankruptcy and is supposed to be spending less and saving more.

In London, the usual elaborate Christmas lights and decorations festoon the main shopping streets. Crowds of shoppers and traffic make the capital's West End all but impassable at any time of the day or evening.

Russians Complete Industrial Tour

CALGARY (CP)—A 14-man Russian oil industry delegation has wound up a month-long tour of the Canadian oil-gas industry, which included inspection of tracked vehicles used in northern oil fields.

The Russians were on an exchange visit following a tour of the Russian oil industry last year by a Canadian delegation.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Building Prospects Poor

By AB KENT
Business Editor

A recent survey showed prospects are meagre next year for heavy construction contracts on Vancouver Island.

The same appears to be true of mainland British Columbia, according to Amalgamated Construction Association researcher S. Hank Goodman.

He said an examination of existing conditions shows there is likely to be a continuing loss of "big job" awards to the heavy contracting industry.

The reasons are partly cyclical, partly due to the money market and partly to economic policies. For example, the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority's two-year development program is phasing toward completion.

The only heavy construction involving Hydro slated for 1968 will be transmission lines and Mica Dam.

Also, industries in Canada have been urged to limit their capital spending programs as a discipline against inflation.

The government has cut back severely its spending on school and institutional construction, at both provincial and federal levels; labor is asking for wage increases and shorter hours; financing is growing short and interest rates higher, all of which contribute to the decline in available work.

B.C. has enjoyed its place on a lofty construction plateau for 10 years and the drop in employment as a result of the predicted trend will be quite noticeable.

But as Mr. Goodman indicates, employment figures in themselves may be misleading.

Frequently, when a construction worker comes west to work on pulp mills, pipelines and hydro-electric dams, he is enamored with B.C. and takes up residence, remaining even after the jobs are finished.

However, many of those skilled journeymen are granted a permit to work at their trades for the duration of specified work, and when the end comes they return to their province of origin.

The result is a reflection on the unemployment figures in their home provinces rather than British Columbia.

The construction association said its industry looks at its relative position to the national economy with "extreme care." It is felt that prudent application of certain economies will result in reasonable success next year.

But, Mr. Goodman adds: "It must be realized that a continuing flow of funds into the construction industry will result in a contribution to the gross national productivity, which is essential to the economy of the country."

The old established firm of Alexander Hamilton Institute Inc. relays some simple advice in its pre-Christmas Investment Bulletin:

"The rules for successful investment change very little. Invest in quality stocks which have demonstrated growing power in sales and earnings, preferably industries having low labor costs per dollar of sales and extractive industries which are rich in natural resources."

Such sage words no doubt explain the long success of Alexander Hamilton Institute and they apply just as readily—the latter suggestion perhaps more so—in western Canada as on Wall Street.

But the risk capital for developing resource industries has to come from speculative investors, nonetheless, be they small or corporate traders.

Coal Company Speeds Plans For Production

VANCOUVER (CP)—Northwestern Coal Mines Ltd. says negotiations are being speeded up to bring its Prince George area mine into production with a large coal sale to Japan.

President Alfred J. Garraway of Victoria told the annual meeting his company hopes to get a long-term contract for 1,000,000 tons of coal a year to be shipped to Japan in large bulk carriers, likely from nearby Squamish.

He said Japanese geologists who visited the property 45 miles southeast of Prince George have been asking for results of laboratory tests of the coking qualities of the coal.

The company says it has 25,000,000 tons indicated and probable coal.

Pollock Family Purchase Shares Of Electrohome

TORONTO (CP)—Carl A. Pollock, president of Electrohome Ltd., says the sale of 10,000 company shares Nov. 23 was to members of his own family.

Mr. Pollock said the sale was part of a long-term plan to adjust his company holdings for estate purposes.

"The same type of transaction has happened in the past and will certainly occur from time to time in the future," he said.

Mr. Pollock held 65,844 shares at the end of last month.

Record Revenues For PGE This Year

VANCOUVER (CP)—Premier Bennett said Thursday the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway has made the first "substantial and over-all" profit in its 55-year history.

"It will make more money this year than in all its 55-year history," he said at the PGE's annual Christmas party. "Even after all interest and other charges are paid the profit will be substantial."

PGE officials said the railway will show a $5,000,000 increase in revenue this year, to a record $25,000,000.

J. S. Broadbent, general manager of the railway, attributed the record revenues to the Peace River power project and construction of new pulp mills in the PGE's business area.

THE CANADA LABOUR (SAFETY) CODE

By proclamation, the new Canada Labour (Safety) Code goes into effect, January 1, 1968.
This first general safety law ever passed by Parliament places a general obligation on employers and employees working in industries under federal jurisdiction to observe appropriate safety and health standards.

FEATURES OF THE LAW

- * It is broad in scope, providing for all the elements of a complete industrial safety program.
- * It is complementary to other enactments in the industrial safety field.
- * Its regulations will be developed in consultation with industry, unions and other interests.
- * It provides for basic research into causes and control of accidents, and for a continuing program of safety education.
- * It provides for inspection and enforcement.

WHO IS COVERED

In general, this law applies to employers and employees in works, undertakings or businesses of an interprovincial, national or international nature and to some others that have been declared by Parliament to be for the general advantage of Canada. These are essentially the same undertakings covered by the Canada Labour (Standards) Code and other federal labour laws.

For further information on the Canada Labour (Safety) Code, write to:

CESARE CEASES SHUTOUT SEARCH

Bid by Minnesota goalie Cesare Maniago to set new National Hockey League shutout record ended at Philadelphia Thursday night as Pat Hannigan (right) popped puck into net behind sprawling Cesare early in first period. Trail-born Maniago had started game with three successive shutouts to his credit and needed one more to equal modern NHL mark. Hannigan and Flyers went on to humble North Stars 6-0 and retain lead in Western Division. (AP Wirephoto.)

Flurry by Flyers Ends Maniago Trip to Stars

Philly Stays in Front By Blanking Minnesota

By The Canadian Press

Cesare Maniago came back to earth with a horrendous thump Thursday as Minnesota North Stars absorbed a 6-0 shutout at the hands of Philadelphia Flyers in one of two National Hockey League games scheduled.

Maniago had caught the hockey world unawares with three successive shutouts before running into the Western Division leaders and was one scoreless victory away from making history.

Only Bill Durnan of Montreal Canadiens, during the 1948-49 season, has recorded four consecutive shutouts during the modern NHL era.

The Flyers had to win to stay ahead of Los Angeles Kings, 4-1 winner over Pittsburgh Penguins Thursday, in the west since the Kings are a bare two points off the pace.

Minnesota, by losing, dropped five points behind Los Angeles in third place.

MADE HIS MARK

Durnan ran up 309 minutes and 21 seconds in shutout time in creating his mark as one of the greatest goaltenders in NHL history.

Maniago, a 28-year-old native of Trail, B.C. who is a masonry construction estimator in the off season in North Burnaby, B.C., ran his shutout string to 188 minutes and 39 seconds before Pat Hannigan rapped home a 10-footer at 5:06 of the first period Thursday.

From then on it was a deluge as the North Stars were swamped by the Philadelphia power.

Claude Laforge added another in the opening period before Forbes Kennedy and Gary Dornhoefer scored in the second and Leon Rochefort and Lou Angotti scored in the third period.

At Los Angeles, the Kings stayed on the pace with goals from Ted Irvine, Bill Flett, Bob Wall and Brian Smith while Earl Ingarfield was the only Penguin to beat goalie Wayne Rutledge.

IS BIGGEST GOALIE

The biggest goalie in the NHL at 6-3 and 185 pounds, Maniago carried the North Stars into serious contention by beating Oakland Seals 1-0 then humbling the Kings 3-0 and 4-0 in succession.

Maniago burst onto the NHL scene in Frank Merriwell style by playing a pair of Stanley Cup playoff games for Toronto Maple Leafs in 1961, his first year as a professional.

He allowed just six goals in the two games and marked himself as a player to watch with his efforts.

But there was a glut of outstanding goalies in the league at the time and he disappeared into the mocras of minor hockey until 1964-65 when he was named the most valuable player and outstanding goalie of the Central Professional League with Minneapolis.

That won him a starting berth with New York Rangers the following year where he posted a 3.36 goal-a-game average over 28 games, splitting his time with Baltimore Clippers of the American League.

DRAFTED FIRST

Last year he fell under the shadow of New York's Ed Giacomin and was Minnesota's first choice in the expansion draft last summer.

The league is idle tonight, but Saturday he may have a chance to recoup when the North Stars are in Pittsburgh while Oakland Seals are at Montreal and Detroit Red Wings are in Toronto.

Boston Bruins will try for a return to first place in the Eastern Division when they play in New York while the eastern and western leaders clash with Philadelphia in Chicago against the Black Hawks.

BALLET-STYLE TIGHTS NOT IN BRITISH STYLE

LONDON (AP)—Tights are being worn by soccer players in Germany and Switzerland now that cold weather is here—but the British will have no part of it.

You would have to play well to wear them before a big crowd, was the remark of Jimmy Greaves, of Tottenham Hotspur.

Bill Nicholson, Tottenham's manager, said: "I would like my team to try the practical value of woollen tights. But even then the whole team must wear them. And some could be embarrassed."

German players started the fad for ballet-type tights as a defence against the cold and Switzerland quickly followed suit.

ON OAKLAND FANS

Barend Say He'll Gamble

OAKLAND, Calif. (CP)—Barend Van Gerbig II says he's convinced Oakland will support a National Hockey League expansion team—and he's willing to gamble on it.

Van Gerbig, the majority owner of the Oakland Seals of the expanded NHL, says it is only a matter of time before the fans start supporting the league's last-place expansion entry.

Barry Van Gerbig—as he was known while a part-time goaltender with the U.S. national hockey team before inheriting money allowed him to invest $2,000,000 in the Seals—says he wanted to bring major league hockey to northern California and is "prepared to stay here."

"I don't believe the Seals will be a financial success for at least two or three seasons," he said. "We'd be kidding ourselves if we thought otherwise."

"We're in a building program. Once we get a hard core of real hockey fans they'll bring others."

Van Gerbig, 28, who follows the Seals in his own private plane on almost every road trip, says he is retired now, but he has become increasingly drawn up in the operation of the NHL expansion team.

Earlier this month, he was quoted in the Vancouver Sun saying he was seeking a new city for the Seals and actively considering Vancouver.

Sun columnist Jim Kearney quoted the young majority owner of the Seals as saying: "For us to stay (in Oakland) we'd have to show a considerable increase in crowds after the football season ends. I can't see us doing that."

PLAY TO STAY

Kearney also quoted Van Gerbig as saying Oakland's lack of interest in the team "filters down to the locker room" and "affects the play of the Seals."

Van Gerbig later denied the report and said:

"We definitely will finish the season here and plan to stay many more years."

Van Gerbig repeats the statement today and adds:

"We aren't here for a trial—we are here to stay."

VISITS McMAHON

He said he flew into Vancouver only to visit Frank McMahon, a Canadian industrialist who wants to bring an NHL expansion franchise to Vancouver.

McMahon bought into the Vancouver Canucks of the Western League last week and announced a group headed by him and the Canucks' owners would continue to press for an NHL franchise here.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Snow Thursday forced cancellation of the final match of a five-game British Columbia schoolboy rugby tour by Trinity College of Glenalmond, Scotland.

Trinity College outscored B.C. teams 76-14 in winning its four previous games. The team left Vancouver by air today and will make a brief stop in New York before returning home.

Trinity College, first British schoolboy rugby team to tour overseas, was scheduled to play St. George's School of Vancouver in the final match.

Weather Vital Factor In Ram-Packer Playoff

(Times News Services)

Weather may prove to be an important factor in Saturday's game for the championship of the National Football League's Western Conference, between Green Bay Packers and Los Angeles Rams.

The forecast is mostly cloudy and cold with a high of 20 and 19-mile-per-hour westerly winds in the Milwaukee area.

Packers are more accustomed to Wisconsin weather and it may be to their advantage. Hands stiffen in the cold and frigid winds can slow the fastest runner.

Rams' coach George Allen disagreed. He said he didn't think the weather would be a factor unless the field is slick.

MANY INJURED

With their long injury list, Packers need all the help they can get.

Coach Vince Lombardi has been forced to use rookies such as halfback Travis Williams and quarterback Don Horn.

Williams is a speedster, having returned four kickoffs for majors.

Horn got in some time against Pittsburgh.

"We wanted to give Horn some game experience," Lombardi said. "And he did well."

The Rams arrived in Milwaukee Wednesday night as the thermometer registered 20 degrees. Earlier in the day the temperature was a record 57.

The game will be televised nationally in Canada by the CBC starting at 11 a.m. PST.

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—It will be a crippled quarterback against a crippled quarterback Sunday when the Browns of Cleveland invade Dallas for the playoff game in the Eastern Division of the National Football League.

The quarterbacks in question—Frank Ryan of Cleveland and Don Meredith of Dallas—were generally conceded at the top of the heap in the NFL last year. This season, Ryan winds up as No. 7, just enough to edge Meredith, No. 8.

Each of the teams has lost five games, while winning nine, and there is nothing gaudy about the records. But in an oddity of the new four-division split up in the league, the Browns and the Pokes are having a playoff.

ON THEIR ARMS Coach Tom Landry of the host Cowboys puts the championship of the East squarely in the hands, and throwing arm, of the quarterbacks.

"The Browns have to be concerned about Ryan, the way we are about Meredith," said Landry. "Whichever quarterback has the good day that will do it."

In regular season, Dallas has defeated Cleveland only three times in 14 meetings, but has won the last two.

Both teams as Sunday approaches are rebounding from slow finishes. Dallas lost its last game to San Francisco. Cleveland bowed to Philadelphia.

WITH THE CURLERS...
A total of 34 rinks have entered the South Vancouver Island men's curling playdowns scheduled for January 6 and 7.

Heading the parade will be Victoria Curling Club, with 11 rinks. Eight are entered from Allan's in Saanich, and Esquimalt, Duncan and the Victoria Racquet Club each will supply five foursomes.

Skiing Victoria's crews are Keith Dagg, Tony Gutoski, Gar Taylor, Don Moss, Bruce Stephen, Harry Gulka, Lloyd Larson, Gordie Moore, Pat Hearn, Maurice Teller and Ted Lewis.

Morris Hill, Sam Snobelen, Bob and Jim Gallagher, Roy Allan, Einar Hemsted, Ed Taylor and Howie Nard are guiding Allan's rinks. Duncan will be represented by two-time B.C. champion Glen Harper, Fred Duncan, Mike Smith, Vern Kaspick and Gary Merrett.

THE RACQUET CLUB'S first representatives will be Jack Glover, Don Matheson, Lloyd Kearns, Ross Nursey and Ron Young.

Six rinks already have drawn their tickets into the northern final, also scheduled Jan. 6 and 7—representatives from Qualicum, Campbell River and Tofino have yet to be declared.

Nanaimo's hopes will ride with crews skipped by Glen Phillips and Norm Thiessen. Veteran Dave Patterson and Gus Palmson won out in Comox Valley while Jim Marasco and Earl Ewart will represent Alberni Valley.

LOOSE STRAWS: Lack of entries has forced Victoria Club to cancel its annual mixed Christmas bonspiel, but Esquimalt is rolling ahead...

Twenty rinks have entered the three-day (Dec. 28-30) affair at the Sports Centre and the deadline has been extended to give Victoria Club rinks a chance to participate...

Portland Buckaroos climbed to within three points of first-place Seattle Totems Thursday by trimming the Western Hockey League leaders 4-2 at Seattle.

Vancouver Canucks and San Diego Gulls battled to a 4-4 overtime tie in the California city in the night's only other action.

At Seattle where 3,666 fans saw the home team lose, Portland broke a 1-1 tie on third-period goals by Andy Hebertson and Larry Leach. Bill Saunders and Arnie Schmattz scored the other Buckaroo markers.

Bill Dineen and Chuck Holmes got the Seattle goals.

At San Diego, before 6,869 fans, Alex Faulkner of the Gulls scored the tying goal at 9:29 of the third period. The teams played a scoreless overtime.

Fred Hills, the WHL's top point man with 35, scored his 13th and 14th markers of the season for San Diego. Jack Evans had the other San Diego goal.

Gord Veprava with two and Stan Gilbertson and Bruce Carmichael with singles replied for Vancouver.

Yachts of Four Nations To Get Chance for Cup

TIME OUT By JEFF KEATE

"Save plenty for me, dear. I want to try and get up enough nerve to watch you land."

NEW YORK (AP)—Four nations—Australia, England, France and Greece—will get a chance in 1970 of wrestling the America's Cup from the United States, which has held it for 116 years.

The New York Yacht Club announced Thursday plans for a round-robin series of eliminations to determine the next challenger for the bottomless mug which has become the symbol of world yacht-racing supremacy.

The eliminations would be held off Newport R.I., in the summer of 1970 prior to the America's Cup series itself, probably in September. Such eliminations are unprecedented.

In a press conference Thursday, Commodore Percy Chubb announced the New York Yacht Club had accepted the challenge of the Royal Sydney Yacht Squadron of Australia for 1970.

Coupled with the acceptance was the understanding, he said, that the Australians would agree to a series of preliminary tests with any or all of three others who have issued challenges—the Royal Dorset Yacht Club of England, the Royal Yacht Club of Greece and the Yacht Club d'Hyeres of France.

WOULD STEP ASIDE

If in the elimination series the winner is a club other than the Royal Sydney Yacht Club, the latter has agreed to step aside in the Cup series.

Australia and France already have agreed to the eliminations, Commodore Chubb said, and word is expected in the near future from England and Greece. The decision must be made by July 1, 1968.

Since the frigate America won the trophy in a race against British vessels around the Isle of Wight in 1851, the United States has defended the Cup 20 times, never losing. The 1970 challenge will be the 21st.

LOST FOUR STRAIGHT

This last summer the U.S. 12-metre yacht Intrepid, sailed by Bus Mosbacher, defeated Australia's Dame Pattie in four straight races. The Australians previously lost a challenge in 1962.

This marks the first challenge for Greece and France. American victories in the past have been scored over Britain, Australia and Canada with majestic, million-dollar J-boats used prior to World War II.

Commodore Chubb said the Sydney Yacht Club was chosen for expediency.

"We decided it was best to deal with one and have the others accept the provisions if one of them qualifies."

Canada's Ski Slopes Say Hello to Science

ROSSLAND (CP)—Canada's national ski team took a cue from France when it introduced electronic equipment as an integral part of its training program at this southeastern British Columbia community this week.

The equipment, designed to provide direct communications between coaches and skiers on the slopes, is being used for the first time in practice sessions on Red Mountain Ski Hill, near here.

Direct orders are issued to team members as they ski down the slopes, permitting on-the-spot corrective suggestions designed to improve speed and technique.

Electronic transmitters and headsets are proving effective for correcting mistakes as the skier makes them on the slopes, said head coach John Platt, Wednesday.

Communication is one way and limited to terse commands. "Attack!" means the skier must dig harder, look for bumps in a flat stretch that can increase speed and go faster by working the legs.

CAN'T TALK BACK

This, say the coaches, is one of the most common commands, particularly with the girls, many of whom are inclined to coast at times. Headsets worn by skiers enable the coaches to give them

Houston Owner Ready For Move to Seattle

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—The owner of the Houston Oilers said Thursday he may move the club to Seattle unless season ticket sales increase dramatically.

K. S. Adams Jr. said he was not making "any threats, just stating a fact."

Attendance for seven American Football League games in Houston this season averaged only 26,447 and Adams said he has lost all the money he wants to in operating the club. He estimated this year's loss would be about $300,000, about one-half of the 1966 loss.

"Let's be honest about this," he said. "Seattle is going to get a pro football team. There probably isn't going to be another expansion franchise granted until the American and National Leagues complete their merger in 1970. Somebody is going to grab off that rich market. If Seattle came to me with an understanding deal, I'd be a fool to turn it down."

MACS LACKING

Holiday Pause May Aid Cause

The Victoria Senior Men's Basketball League pauses for a holiday break, and that might give the leading Coffee Macs time to brew up a second breath.

Labatts topped two points off the Macs' lead Thursday by clipping the dedicated leaders 53-45 at Gordon Head Junior High.

Colony Inn remained in a second-place tie with the Labs, six points behind Macs, by dumping winless Red Lions 86-73 in the night's other encounter.

Macs lost playing-coach Darrell Lorimer, Ken Gregory and Bill Spotswood earlier this week when they transferred to Labatts. Labs, however, will not be able to use the transfers until playoff time.

In addition four other Mac players were unable to make it Thursday and the leaders were able to field only five men. The Labs, ahead 30-22 at the half, had no trouble breezing to victory despite Rick Williamson's 23-point effort.

SHARP AFIELD

Colony showed a sharpness in its field shooting and also had to difficulty against Lions. Jim Cunningham (20), Kerry Greenwood (18), Bill Wilson (15) and Mike Solstice (11) led the way.

Lions' standouts were Bob Tomlinson (24) and Jack Lusk (22).

Next league games are scheduled Jan. 5.

Nanaimo and University of Victoria took teams honors and John Cliff set a new individual course record in last weekend's cross-country relays at Thetis Lake.

The Nanaimo squad of Jennifer Jones, Arlene Johnson, Nancy Chamberlayne and Jeanne Baldwin won the women's team trophy and the Uvic quartet of Larry Corbett, Steve Sullivan, Ken Cameron and Charlie Thorne captured the men's trophy.

Cliff, the Pacific Northwest cross-country champion, anchored the sponsoring Spartan Track Club to a second-place finish as he covered the course in a record-shattering 16 minutes 23 seconds. Another Spartan, Norm Patenaude, had earlier topped the former mark with a clocking of 16:46.

Cards and Cowboys Each Get Nine Spots

LOS ANGELES (AP)—St. Louis Cardinals and Dallas Cowboys dominated selections for the Eastern Conference All-Stars, each placing nine men on the squad for the National Football League's 18th annual Pro Bowl game here Jan. 21.

Quarterbacks Sonny Jurgensen of Washington Redskins and Fran Tarkenton of New York Giants were named as field generals of the Eastern squad.

Cleveland Browns placed seven on the squad. Coaches of the Eastern Conference made the selections.

VETERAN STEWARD ... RETIRES AT 82

Long Turf Career Ends

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP)—After nearly 60 years of officiating at races—and of dreaming up ways to make them more enjoyable—George Schilling has gone into semi-retirement.

He was 82 Monday—his final day of stewardship at Bay Meadows, which closed its fall season.

The dean of race stewards began as an exercise boy at the long-forgotten Emeryville track near Oakland, Calif.

He has officiated more than 50 years at Caliente and its predecessor, Old Tijuana; 32 years on Western Canada's Prairie circuit; two years at Chicago's Sportsman's Park and other mid-western and eastern tracks, and for 35 years at Bay Meadows, Tanforan and Golden Gate Fields in Northern California.

Over the years he has been credited with these innovations:

Calling a race in progress. Broadcasting a race short-wave overseas. That was in 1932 when Australia's Phar Lap won the Caliente Handicap.

A sprinkler automobile to water the track after each race.

Bringing the daily double to Canada, Mexico and the United States.

Helmets for jockeys. Ordering a lame horse from a race to protect bettors. Veterinarians now examine horses before each race.

ACADEMY AWARDS

It's Bonnie And Clyde —Perhaps

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Nominations for this year's Academy Awards race are almost completed, and it shapes up as the most undistinguished contest within memory.

Local observers fail to recall a more lacklustre field of candidates.

The major contenders appear to be films heavily weighted with violence and sex, not the sort of thing academy voters are proud to endorse. Some big musicals are up for consideration, but many reviewers found them empty and artless.

It appears to be a good year for dark horses. Certainly it's not a good year for those poor souls forced by the exigencies of their profession to predict Oscar winners.

EMPHASIS ON CRIME

Crime films dominate the contest for best picture. Bonnie and Clyde may well be the favorite, judging from Eastern reviews hailing it as the greatest thing since Birth of a Nation. It isn't that great, although it is an adventurous piece of film making. In the Heat of the Night has attracted much favor among academy voters, and In Cold Blood is having an impact. Cool Hand Luke and Wait Until Dark also were well received.

The Graduate appears to have the best chance among the non-crime films. Dr. Dolittle, Camelot, and possibly Thoroughly Modern Millie and the Happiest Millionaire may get mentioned, but none was a total triumph. Dr. Dolittle came the closest.

Other possibilities for best picture are Guess Who's Coming to Dinner, Taming of the Shrew, To Sir with Love, Two For the Road, Far from the Madding Crowd, The Dirty Dozen and The Family Way.

STEIGER FAVORED

The males provide the strongest race among the 1967 performances.

Rod Steiger was an early favorite because of In the Heat of the Night. Sidney Poitier may well be a contender again for that film or To Sir With Love.

Spencer Tracy seems likely to be awarded a posthumous nomination on the basis of Guess Who's Coming to Dinner. Other probabilities are Paul Newman for Cool Hand Luke and Warren Beatty for Bonnie and Clyde. Newcomer Dustin Hoffman has a good chance for The Graduate.

Other possibilities: Richard Burton, Taming of the Shrew; Bob Blake, In Cold Blood; Richard Harris, Camelot; Dirk Bogarde, Our Mother's House; Lee Marvin, The Dirty Dozen; Rex Harrison, Dr. Dolittle; George C. Scott, The Firm Flam Man.

ACTRESS RACE CLOSER

The female star performances that seem to have the best chance are: Faye Dunaway, Bonnie and Clyde; Vanessa Redgrave, Camelot; Dame Edith Evans, The Whisperers; Audrey Hepburn, Wait Until Dark; Katharine Hepburn, Guess Who's Coming to Dinner; Julie Andrews Thoroughly Modern Millie; Rosalind Russell, Taming of the Shrew; Julie Christie, Far from the Madding Crowd.

Mike Nichols is certain to be a directorial nominee for the second straight year because of The Graduate—his Virginia Woolf lost out to Fred Zinnemann's A Man For All Seasons last year. Arthur Penn will be a solid contender for Bonnie and Clyde, as will Norman Jewison for In the Heat of the Night and Richard Brooks for In Cold Blood.

DECEMBER WEDDING

GRAND FORKS, B.C. (CP) —James Gawley, 90, of Vernon told friends and relatives when he left Vernon Dec. 12 that he was going to Vancouver for a visit.

Today, his secret was out. Instead of going to Vancouver, Gawley eloped to Kelowna with 78-year-old Kate Ferguson of Grand Forks. The newlyweds have returned here to live.

AUTOMATED THEATRE HAS JUST ONE CLASS

NEW YORK (AP) —Manhattan, which has just about everything else, is to get its first movie theatre requiring patrons to wear evening clothes on Saturday nights.

Walter Reade, Jr., president of the 1,200-seat theatre, to be named the Florenz Ziegfeld, said it would be the first fully-automated one, the first designed to show only reserved-seat attractions and the largest built here since the 6,400-seat Radio City Music Hall opened in 1932.

The new theatre is at 54th Street and Sixth Avenue.

BRITISH TELEVISION LOOKS AT CANADA AND ITS FUTURE

Size 'Supreme Enemy' of Identity Quest

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — Canada still lacks national identity but deserves respect for avoiding the ways of chauvinism, British television viewers have been told.

A 50-minute BBC program about the country, beamed to a mass audience Thursday night, termed Canada's immense size the "supreme enemy" of its identity quest.

Far-flung Canadian communities and provinces are preoccupied with local affairs, or feel kinship with neighboring areas of the United States, rather than with distant parts of their own country, the British program asserted.

If saw hope, however, in the "desperately respectable" but "healthy" life of the Canadian small town, as well as in what was called French-Canadian refusal to be assimilated into the U.S. scheme of things.

The program highlighted Quebec province—embodiment of "the liveliest intelligence in Canada"—and St. Thomas, Ont., where a man can live out an uneventful life with dignity and pleasure.

Separatist leaders put the case for Quebec independence, with anti-separatist viewpoints also featured.

H. E. Stafford of St. Thomas, MP for Elgin, figured in the close-up of his community, taken to be typically Canadian.

With commentary by Patrick O'Donovan, a top writer for the London Observer, the program called Canadian youth "milk-faced, large, healthy and uncomplicated."

The BBC evaluation of Canada's prospects seemed more optimistic than one offered by the current issue of a British left-wing weekly, The New Statesman, which cites "the rapid development and magnitude of the national crisis" there.

Another London weekly, The Economist, considers Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp a strong favorite with western elements for future leadership of the Liberal party.

Its Canadian correspondent adds, however, that Sharp "may be wide and upright like a totem pole but suffers from woodenness as well."

Seeing strong chances for survival of Canada's federal system is an independent Commonwealth quarterly called The Round Table.

THROAT DAMAGE REPAIRED Boy, 13, Can Talk Again

By JIM OSBORNNE

EDMONTON (CP) — The Jensen family will hear their 13-year-old son express his delight at Christmas for the first time in almost five years.

Danny Jensen was on a family picnic in June, 1963, when he tripped, smashing his throat against a table.

The fall damaged his larynx.

For more than four years he had difficulty breathing and could speak only in whispers.

Audible speech came back into his world just in time for Christmas when the second phase of a two-stage, no-guarantee operation was successful.

LUCKY TO BE ALIVE

Mr. and Mrs. Jens Jensen of Edberg, 60 miles southeast of Edmonton, were told their son was lucky to be alive. Doctors said the boy's larynx and upper portion of the respiratory tract had been damaged, and a portion of the vocal cords crushed.

As scar tissue formed in the throat, the larynx opening narrowed, cutting off breathing and forcing doctors to perform a tracheotomy. Efforts to open the larynx were unsuccessful until the boy was taken to a St. Louis hospital last August.

A portion of Danny's larynx was removed and scar tissue replaced with skin taken from one of his legs. A support was inserted in the larynx and, until removed, it was impossible to determine in success.

There had been no certainty the operation would correct the damage. The test came when the support was removed recently in an Edmonton hospital.

GUILTY OF FRAUD

Someone Gave Fish To Winner

WEST VANCOUVER (CP)—A man who told the story of the big one that almost got away pleaded guilty in magistrate's court Thursday to defrauding the Vancouver Sun.

David John Chafe, 33, a cannery worker, claimed first prize in the newspaper's salmon derby in August with a 37-pound salmon he said almost got away.

Prosecutor Lorne Topham said the salmon that brought Chafe $3,500 in prizes was actually caught on derby day by a commercial fishboat and Chafe obtained the fish at the dock and entered it in the contest.

He said Chafe was not the instigator of the scheme and that someone else had given the fish to him. Police said no further charges are contemplated.

On derby day Chafe said he took the fish in a half-hour fight that split his fishing rod, forcing him to haul his catch in hand over hand.

Derby officials said disposition of the prizes—a 17-foot boat, and 80-horsepower motor and a trophy—will not be decided until after Chafe is sentenced Jan. 11.

Strike Leader Jailed

NEW YORK (AP)—Albert Shanker went to jail for 15 days Wednesday for leading last September's public school teachers' strike, which the sentencing judge had called "rebellion against the government." Shanker, 39, president of the United Federation of Teachers, will spend the Christmas holidays serving a contempt-of-court sentence.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Q. Please help me. Before too long I am going to the first class reunion I have ever been to, and I look twice my age because of my eyes. I am only 30 years old, but my eyes are very deep set. When I awaken in the morning, the lids are puffy and hang over my eyes. This improves some during the day.

Is there an operation to remove some of the excess skin or what can I do to improve my appearance?

A. Makeup can help bring out deep set eyes. Beware of brows that are too heavy and dark. Narrower, lighter brows are better.

If you use eye shadow, do not apply it to the entire upper lid. Blend it outward from the centre of each lid. Color should be heavier toward the outward areas. Take an eyebrow pencil and draw a fine line outward from the centre of the lower lids. Then blend.

If your eyes are blue, the same color in shadow will bring them out. If you have dark eyes, use one of the pastel shadows, not dark grey or brown.

The swollen eyes in the morning suggest an allergy, maybe more than one, although there could be a medical reason for this. See your doctor.

If he discovers no reason for it, then check into the possibility that you may be allergic to feathers in your pillow or the detergent used in washing your sheets or woolen blankets or some other item connected with your night's sleep.

Plastic surgeons can remove excess skin from the upper lids most successfully.

DEAR ABBY...

Hubby Has Wrong Definition of Love

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Is it possible for a man to love two women at the same time? My husband started driving an unmarried girl to work and back every day because she lives near here and they work at the same place. She is 23 and my husband is 44. He admitted that he has been seeing her other times, and he says now he can't give her up because he is in love with her. This has been going on for about a year.

I told him if he wanted her, I would give him a divorce, but he says he loves me and the children (we have four) and can't give me up either. I am just heart sick over this and don't know what to do. Should I tell him he's got to make a choice? Or should I just throw him out? I still love him.

HEARTSICK

DEAR HEARTSICK: If this cheap affair with a co-worker can be called "love" then it is possible for a man to "love" as many women as he can find time for. He's having his cake and eating it, too.

Don't throw him out. Tell him that he has three months in which to make a decision. Try to be compassionate, gentle and understanding, but let him know you will not share him. I'll bet he stays home.

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago you had a letter in your column from a married woman who hid her wedding ring under her gloves when she went to work because she felt that wives should not work, and she was ashamed.

You should have told her to take off her gloves and stop living in the dark ages. Statistics show that 57 per cent of all married women work.

I have babysat, cooked and done the marketing, in addition to running my own business while my wife worked, kept house and handled all the correspondence and bookkeeping for my business. As a result we now have two healthy well-adjusted boys, a home, house trailer, two cars, a mountain cabin, and other property—all paid for.

This would not have been possible had my wife been "ashamed" to work. We are very happy with the arrangement and proud of our joint accomplishments.

DEAR ABBY: Kindly tell that nifty who was "irked" because some woman brought a boy who appeared to be about 12 into the ladies' room, that if she had used her head she would have realized that no mother would do such a thing unless it was absolutely necessary. I have a handicapped son who is also 12, and as tall as I am, and I would not send him into a men's room alone. That is the reason I take him where I can go.

A New You by Emily Wilkens

It used to be said that "boys never make passes at girls who wear glasses." How times have changed! In the fast-moving present, glasses are definitely part of the fashion scene. Many bespectacled young pacesetters have 20-20 vision. They simply wear glasses to spice a certain outfit, play up a zingy hair color or add to the "look" of the moment.

This puts the lass who actually NEEDS glasses to see properly right in front. At the Academy Awards, actresses Vanessa Redgrave and Anouk Aimee, resplendent in formal attire, unselfconsciously slipped their glasses on and off before the cameras. Princess Grace of Monaco, who once refused to be photographed while wearing glasses, currently sports them with aplomb.

Now "in" are large oval, rectangular and very thin frames. The most popular lens tints are palest amber, yellow and an almost no-color lens. All of these subtly shade the eye yet reveal it at the same time. Many fashionables choose lenses which deliberately intensify the color of their eyes, copycatting, no doubt, from tinted contact lenses.

On the agenda are soft and bold geometric frames, super-slimmy metal rims, old-professor type rims. Clear plastic-framed ski goggles with prescription lenses are another futuristic innovation. Lens tints will continue to run the gamut from palest no-color to yellow.

Try on a wide selection of frames before you decide upon the type which does the most for you. Let your facial shape determine the best possible choice. Generally speaking, if your face is round, steer clear of round frames and veer toward the squarish. Square faces look softer in octagonal frames, triangular faces in round ones. Don't overpower a delicate oval face with anything overly heavy or bold.

Besides shape considerations, select a frame which does not press on the bridge of your nose or feel uncomfortably heavy.

Try on glasses in front of a three-way mirror to be sure the side view is as attractive as the full face.

When choosing glasses, the color of the frames should complement both your hair and complexion. Golden-tressed lasses usually sparkle in gold or amber-framed glasses, brunettes in thin-rimmed silver or black, redheads in golden ambers, pale blues or greens. If your hair is gray, select a soft blue-gray, silver or pastel shade.

With the multitude of shapes and colors available, there should be little difficulty in finding the glasses which are most flattering to you.

Eye makeup takes on new importance. Eye shadows look darker behind the lens, so remember to keep them on the light side.

To emphasize the eye, sweep liquid or cake liner across the top lid, as close to the base of the lashes as possible, lifting it slightly at the corner of the outer end for a wide-eyed look. Use pencil liner beneath the eye to "open it up" even more, adding little "twiggies" if they suit you.

Be a knowledgeable lass in glasses and the "New You" will certainly see standout results! JUST FOR YOU: Avoid eye-lash-lens contact by using a roll-on, wand-type mascara which tends to curl lashes as well as color them.

Roasting Chestnuts A Dickens of a Treat

By Penny Saver

Christmas is almost here and I must say I welcome it with all the heart that is left me after the tension of Christmas shopping. I have left my grocery shopping till last, hoping to get something very special to go with the traditional turkey.

I was tickled pink to find a display of English chestnuts with a big sign declaring them a special. This price will continue until the store closes on Saturday evening. These large nuts still showed some of their glossy sheen through the dusting of packing material that had brought them safe and sound from the parent trees. For 59 cents a pound you can enjoy this old-time treat in your own home. The salesgirl said that the chestnuts should be picked so that they won't explode and then baked in the oven. When they break open they are done and can be used in dressing or eaten alone.

Another special in the nut department is an assortment of Brazil nuts, walnuts and almonds at 49 cents a pound. This also runs until the store closes for Christmas and will provide hours of nut-cracking fun.

Pecans, still in their shiny shells, are 89 cents a pound.

If you would like to experiment in exotic foods this year, the store where I shopped has some out-of-the-way vegetables. There are the great purple globes of egg-plant at 39 cents each and whole papayas, priced as marked but averaging 39 cents a piece. A pack of four whole artichokes is 79 cents and there are pineapples, lemons, "scales" and all for 69 cents each. Fresh peppers, both red and green, cost 49 cents a pound while Florida avocados are 39 cents each. Mixed in the lot are such old standbys as peas, broccoli, Brussels sprouts and the rest.

If you would like to know where I shopped for this merry assortment of Christmas foods, please call me at 382-3131.

Hmm... the wonder of it all! His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and two-year-old Kim, the youngest of 42 children from the Protestant Orphanage who attended a Christmas party in Government House on Thursday afternoon, compare notes. Both vote it the best party of the year. When you're young or young-in-heart, they both agree that lots of good food, good company and Santa are an irresistible combination. (Irving Strickland photo.)

Morality of Younger Generation Now Based on Freedom—Not Fear

NEW YORK (UPI) — In this era of the sex revolution, what kind of upbringing is the best way to guarantee your son or daughter will choose chastity?

I put the question to the Rev. Ernest Gordon, since 1954 dean of the university chapel, Princeton University.

"By example," he answered. "It is obvious undergraduates respond to models of morality." And, mom and dad, you give the example by being loving parents. Dean Gordon said there's no question. Young people respond to persons with higher convictions.

The new chastity, according to the dean, really is better than the old chastity. The latter was based on fear of getting a girl in trouble, on fear of coming down with VD, on fear of the consequences of breaking one of the "thou shalt nots" in the commandments.

Dean Gordon doubts that the old chastity was truly moral since it was based on fear instead of freedom without coercion.

The pill, superdrugs for VD and other developments really have made the young people free to make moral choices. Dean Gordon has no doubts that young people with strong models of morality at home, coming from a background of trust, have the best chance of favoring the new chastity.

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

Dean Gordon, in a report prepared for the January "Reader's Digest," makes the new case for chastity.

"What's really novel in the 'new morality,' is the freedom — as against the compulsion — to choose the course that will lead to the richest, fullest, most self-respecting life," he writes. "Simply put, it is this: Sexual freedom, under the so-called new morality, should be regarded by today's youth as a challenge to their freedom of choice."

"And, freedom of choice, in the area of sex as elsewhere, involves the demand to choose for oneself, influenced by neither old-fogey fears nor hipster pressures, the course that will contribute to the richest and fullest life."

Among contemporary college students, the dean has found increasing recognition and resentment—that their freedom of choice in moral action is being pushed around quite as much by "libertarian thou shalt nots" as their parents were by "thou shalt nots."

In the report in "Reader's Digest," he tells of delight at hearing recently of a girl who said to her mother:

"Don't worry about me. I'm a nonconformist. I intend to remain a virgin until I marry." "This remark," he said, "stamped her as one mature enough to respect her own body and to preserve its purity for the man she loves, or will come to love."

"She is the confident person — the girl with a future instead of the girl with a past."

Dean Gordon, author of several books including "A Living Faith for Today," makes this additional point in "The New Case for Chastity."

"What many fail to grasp, at the time their freedom of choice is being exercised, is that depth studies of married couples have concluded that of those men and women who have had premarital sexual intercourse, the more promiscuous they have been premaritally, the less likely they are to be happily married."

and the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Richardson of Edson, Alberta, who travelled to Victoria for the service.

Mrs. Graig Tait was matron of honor. She wore a pale blue brocade gown styled on empire lines with a yellow velvet bow as a headpiece, to tone with her colonial bouquet of yellow roses. As jewelry she wore a sapphire pendant, a gift of the bride and groom.

Graig Tait acted as best man. William Chandler, the bride's brother, ushered the guests.

At the reception following in the Old Colonial Inn a tiered wedding cake, made by Mrs. M. Atkinson, centred the head table. It was topped with pink roses and flanked by vases of pink carnations, and mauve and pink chrysanthemums. Rev. D. Metzger said the grace and Fred Greenidge proposed the toast to the bride.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding included Mrs. I. Blakey and Gladys, aunt and cousin of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. F. Greenidge, all of Seattle.

The newlyweds will make their home at 329 Island Highway.

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

On the Party Line

Parties of every dimension are starring Victorians' calendars during the week before Christmas.

Among the most colorful held this week was the annual Christmas ball of the Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, held on Wednesday evening. It began with a buffet dinner, which was followed by a formal dance on the quarterdeck of the college. Officer cadets and their guests were received by Group Capt. D. B. Wurtele, RCAF, college commandant, and Mrs. Wurtele; Officer Cadet Harry F. Elliott and Miss Elaine Anderson. The Kandi-Brass, a five-piece combo, played for dancing. Two-hundred cadets, their dates, 35 staff members and their wives attended the affair.

Also held on Wednesday evening was a formal dance in the Crystal Ballroom of the Empress Hotel. It was attended by student nurses of the Royal Jubilee Hospital and St. Joseph's Hospital and their guests. The Ambassadors provided music for dancing.

Student nurses of Royal Jubilee Hospital celebrated again on Thursday evening. This time it was a student-faculty party in the Pink Room of the nurses' residence. The room was gay with red and green Christmas decorations and individual tables were centred with red candles and white chrysanthemums. Gifts were exchanged with Santa doing the honors. The hospital's dietary staff provided refreshments. Games were played. As a climax to the party, it ended with the student nurses forming a choir and doing the rounds of the hospital in order to sing carols for the patients.

Another party to take place on Thursday evening, this time at the Red Lion Motor Inn, had a nautical flavor. Members of the Patricia Dufour Navy League Wrenette Corps donned dress uniforms for the corps' first mess dinner. Sixty-two wrenettes were at the affair. Seated with the corps' commanding officer, Lieut. Ethel Jagard, NLW, at the head table were Mrs. George Dufour, national Wrenette chairman; Mr. William G. S. George, president of the local Navy League branch; Lt.-Cmdr. Douglas Casey, RCSC, commanding officer of the Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps; Lieut. Kenneth Hancock, NLG, and Lieut. James Campbell, NLG, commanding officer and executive officer of the Admiral Rayner Navy League Cadet Corps, and Mrs. Christopher Downing, president of the Women's Auxiliary to the Navy League.

Out-of-Town Guests

As in former years, visitors from many parts of North America are staying at the Empress Hotel for the holiday season in order to enjoy the traditional festivities which have made the hotel a centre of activity during late December. Among those who have already registered are Mr. and Mrs. George Baillie of Montreal; Mr. A. Fraser, Ottawa; Mrs. E. Gibbard, Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Buller of Sidney, B.C.; Mr. T. A. Graham, Edmonton; Mrs. W. Henderson, Santa Cruz, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. D. Williams of Calgary; Senator T. A. Crerar, Winnipeg; Mr. and Mrs. G. Seymour of Royston, B.C.; Mrs. E. Stewart, Panorama City, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. G. Terry, of San Francisco; Mr. W. Johns and Mrs. A. Johns of Oakville, Ont.; Mrs. G. Hannan and Mrs. D. Connor of Honolulu; Mr. and Mrs. C. Reith of Piedmont, Calif.; Mrs. E. Royston of Hendersonville, North Carolina; Mr. and Mrs. J. Stahmann of Van Nuys, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. C. Wilson of Corvallis, Ore.; Mr. J. Campbell, Vancouver; Senator J. C. Irvine and Mr. J. C. Irvine of Ottawa.

Family Christmas

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Goward, 2495 Arbutus Road, will have their five children home together for Christmas for the first time in six years. Arriving on Saturday will be Florence, who is teaching at Battersea, London.

Eng.; Mary, a violin teacher in Toronto public schools; Bernard, from Oshawa, Ont., where he is a high school teacher; Albert, from Vancouver, and Bill from Dawson Creek, where he is studying at the British Columbia Vocational School. They will all be in the city until Jan. 2.

Son of Victoria Couple Wed in North Vancouver

A wedding of wide interest to Victorians took place in St. Catherine's Anglican Church, North Vancouver, when Jessiemann Johnston became the bride of John James Sled.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white ripple crepe complemented by her cathedral veil that misted from a single white rose headpiece. White roses and marguerites formed her bouquet.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Johnston of North Vancouver and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Sled, 148 Cambridge Street, Victoria. The groom's parents travelled to Vancouver for the service. Rev. John Godkin officiated.

White and gold chrysanthemums decorated the church for the service. Mrs. J. Godkin was the organist, accompanying the Junior choir.

Miss Judy Cline was maid of honor and Miss Catherine Johnston was junior bridesmaid for her sister. They wore matching gowns of apricot crepe and carried bouquets of tinted green chrysanthemums. Ralph Sinden, Victoria, acted as best man. Greg Johnston and John Rae ushered the guests.

A reception followed in the Capilano Gardens. Raymond Campbell proposed the toast to his niece. For travelling on honeymoon to Hawaii the bride chose a navy blue dress with a lime green hat.

The newlyweds will make their home in Vancouver.

Exchange Presents At Dinner

Members of the Victoria Symphony Society's Women's Committee exchanged gifts from a beautifully decorated Christmas tree when they met for their annual Christmas dinner in the banquet room of the Red Lion Motor Inn recently.

Guests seated at the head table included Mrs. Brian Gilling, wife of the president of the board; past presidents of the committee, Mrs. H. Thirlwall, Mrs. Jack Barracough, Mrs. J. Edmison, Mrs. D. Roxburgh; guests of honor Mrs. Lazslo Galt, wife of the conductor, and Mrs. Ray Owens, wife of the concert master, and members of the committee executive.

Prior to the dinner Mrs. Jack Barracough entertained the members at a sherry party in her Cabbro Bay Road home.

Mrs. T. Mayne acted as chairman of the meeting in the absence of the president, Mrs. K. W. Thomson. The Amity Singers, under the direction of Ronald Webster, provided a program of entertainment.

MANY ATTEND

Members attending the affair included Mrs. R. M. Adamson, Mrs. V. Benn, Mrs. V. P. Boise, Mrs. W. Burley, Mrs. L. H. Clark, Mrs. S. Cuppage, Mrs. J. Fraser, Mrs. A. G. Gallagher, Mrs. J. Gillespie, Mrs. R. Hopkins, Mrs. P. Humphrey, Mrs. N. Isherwood, Mrs. P. Ovoris, Mrs. J. H. McClain, Mrs. D. Manson, Mrs. T. Mayne, Mrs. J. Menzies. Also attending were Mrs. Elsie Cornish, a guest from England; Mrs. E. Napper, Mrs. G. A. Nealey, Mrs. D. Radcliffe, Mrs. G. Stelck, Mrs. D. E. Smith, Mrs. J. Terry, Mrs. S. G. Watts, Mrs. R. Webster, Mrs. J. Butler, Mrs. J. Hele, Mrs. P. Mallett, Mrs. K. Baker, Mrs. E. Goodall, Mrs. W. Milburn, Mrs. P. J. Steel, Mrs. A. Wright and Mrs. J. Eagles of Sidney Burrows.

Others present were Misses Charlotte Crawford, Dorothy Creighton, Marianne Fraser, Lottie Kaiser, Eve Lettice, Elsie Smith.

Monkees Lose Out To the Hungry

A Winnipeg teenager wrote in to the Unitarian Service Committee at 56 Sparks Street, Ottawa. "I must admit that this dollar was going towards the purchase of a Monkee L.P., but I realise it is needed more elsewhere." A hungry Korean child will be able to enjoy a bowl of barley for 14 days because of a teenager's thoughtfulness.

WHAT—NO ICING?

Household pets are apt to get short shrift during the holiday party season. One of the outstanding exceptions to this rule is the formidably large boxer, Prince, who lives at the Selkirk Avenue home of Mr. and Mrs. James Moir. Mr. Moir arrived home from work this week to see the dining room table tastefully set and centred with a birthday cake. The confection was a masterpiece; square and large, and made of hamburger with four stubby candles glowing on top. The party was in honor of Prince's birthday. You'd think he'd be delighted, wouldn't you? Not Prince, he's still waiting for the cottage cheese icing which his mistress had promised him. She'd been too busy Christmas shopping to get around to that final detail.

ABORTIONS

is at stake and he personally felt therapeutic abortions should be permitted too.

The hospital, operated by the Seventh Day Adventist Church but recognized as a general public hospital, would implement the change in the law, he said.

"I personally feel that a mother should be protected and it would be absolutely criminal to allow her health to be destroyed," he said.

Elsewhere in the province, the proposal appeared to find general favor.

'ALIVE THINKING'

Vancouver city prosecutor Stewart McMorran said it shows "alive thinking" about the problems of women.

"Offhand it seems as if the section would cover almost every situation. That's a good step in the right direction," he added.

The proposed change is one of several recommended to the Commons Thursday by Justice Minister Pierre Trudeau. Abortions would be legal in cases where pregnancy could endanger the mother's health.

In suburban East Burnaby, the Rev. J. M. Taylor, a United Church minister, said the section does not go far enough.

"A woman should be free to decide what she wants to do with her own body. This law will do little to eliminate the great number of illegal abortions."

'NOT FAR ENOUGH'

Dr. Michael Turko, president of the B.C. Medical Association, also said the proposed change does not go far enough.

He said his organization supports abortions when a mother's health is in danger, when there is a substantial risk the child may be born with grave mental or physical disability, or when there is reasonable ground to believe the pregnancy was the result of a sexual offence.

Although the abortion amendment appeared to generate the most reaction, other sections of the omnibus bill also came in for comment.

Opinion varied on the proposal to change the impaired driving section by making breath tests mandatory.

RETAIN SUSPENSIONS

Comments by Attorney-General Robert Bonner suggested that B.C. will retain its present "roadside suspensions" program which permits police to suspend drivers' licences for 24 hours on the basis of a .08 per cent blood alcohol reading.

The federal change could still be implemented in cases of formal charges of impaired driving because the blood-alcohol level involved would be higher at .1 per cent.

"I think there is a lot to be said for the system we have adopted," Mr. Bonner said.

"This way we have shown we can produce useful results without putting the motorist through the criminal courts."

But B.C. Safety Council president B. M. Brabant of Vancouver said he fully agreed with the compulsory breath tests because it would help reduce the traffic death toll.

He said he was impressed in a visit this month to England where "dramatic results and changes in social patterns" have been achieved by similar legislation this year.

Mr. Brabant said "people in Britain have just stopped driving when they're drinking because they know it makes them subject to immediate court action."

FOURTH 'SOBER'

He said rigidly enforced breath testing would bring about social customs similar to those in Scandinavia where, in a party of four persons "only three will drink and the fourth will stay sober so he's in condition to drive them home."

TWO HOSPITALS

But J. C. Cowan, president of Victoria Bar Association, said he personally was divided in his feeling towards the amendment.

He said he agreed with defining a certain level as a driving offence in itself, but he had reservations about making it an offence to refuse to take the test.

"The thing that concerns me is what happens to our principle that a person is innocent until proven guilty and not automatically because he refuses to incriminate himself?"

NO B.C. LOTTERY

Mr. Bonner said the provision to allow lotteries could result in desirable easing of the clamps on church socials and other good-cause fund-raising organizations, but he ruled out any likelihood that the B.C. government would launch its own lottery scheme.

"I don't think the government should be in the gambling business," he said.

"It's bad enough to be in the liquor business."

There was also mixed reaction to the proposed change in the "laws governing homosexuality—permitting such acts between consenting adults in private. Mr. McMorran called it a retrograde step.

"It is just a further drop in the general community standards of morality," he said.

He said legalizing acts would give impetus to those who have kept their homosexual impulses under control, or hidden.

However, Rev. Taylor said the reform was long overdue.

"I am not in favor of encouraging homosexuality, but along with the changed law I am in favor of forensic treatment clinics for homosexuals," he said.

The amendment giving judges power to control what can be publicly reported on preliminary hearings stirred controversy in the legal profession.

Under present law, news media may report everything at preliminary hearings except confessions or admissions which the accused might make. Mr. McMorran said he liked open reporting.

But Mr. Cowan said he was "all in favor of it and wish it had gone further so that no evidence whatever in a preliminary hearing could be published."

"I feel that with our system of preliminary hearings preceding jury trials, publication of things which later might be ruled inadmissible is prejudicial to the accused and jury members can't always wipe out entirely the memory of what they've read."

David Beeching, manager of the Victoria SPCA branch, welcomed the amendment which would allow magistrates to prohibit a person convicted of cruelty to animals from keeping a pet or animal for a period of two years.

"Obviously this would be applicable in cases of vicious cruelty rather than neglect. There have been cases in Ontario, particularly, where persons have been convicted regularly every six months of cruelty and this should help that situation."

Col. William Rae, DSC, VD, Croix de Guerre, has been appointed honorary lieutenant-colonel of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's).

He was a company commander with the 16th Battalion, Canadian Scottish, an organization of the unit at Valcartier in 1914, and served overseas until invalided to England in June 1915.

In December, 1915, Col. Rae was appointed second-in-command of the Third Battalion and in May, 1916, was given command of the Fourth Battalion, CEF. He served in France, Belgium, Germany and England until 1919.

From 1940 to 1946, Col. Rae was overseas director of Canadian Legion War Services and received the legion's award of merit.

Enlargement of Central Saanich volunteer fire department hall is expected to be completed by council next year as the result of a fire marshal's report.

The report recommended the modernization and enlargement of the meeting-recreational area of the present firehall.

It also urged purchase of a modern pumper unit to replace an outdated truck.

Acquisition of a site for a future satellite firehall in the Brentwood Bay area was also suggested.

The report followed an inquiry made at the request of the fire committee chaired by Coun. Philip Benn.

The department at present has 30 volunteer firemen.

Boy, 16, Pleads Guilty to Selling Controlled Drug

A 16-year-old boy who sold methadone to another youth pleaded guilty to trafficking in a controlled drug when he appeared in central court Thursday.

Richard Ray Whitman of Suite 211, 845 Esquimalt Road, will be sentenced Dec. 29 after Magistrate Ostler has studied a background report on the youth prepared by a probation officer.

Detective Constable Murray McArthur told the court Thursday that Whitman had sold the drug on Nov. 20 or 21 to another youth at 809 Penwell and had received a marked $5 bill. Police later found the marked bill in Whitman's possession when the premises were raided.

Whitman is a user of the drug, court was told.

Chinese Don't Want Defector

HONG KONG (AP)—Dr. Paul H. Liu, identified as a former science professor at the University of California, tried to defect to China this week but the Communists wouldn't take him, British border officials reported today.

The officials said Liu broke through their barricades Tuesday and stood on the Chinese side of the border for 30 hours in the cold without food, until Chinese officials told him on Wednesday he would not be permitted to enter China.

Men Snubbing Starched Harnesses

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
NEW YORK (AP) — While winning equal opportunities for themselves, women have freed men from their inhibitions, about the way they dress.

"Women begin to look like, and in a sense, become men, freed of the responsibility of running things... become more flamboyant," British fashion historian James Laver recently told an interviewer.

"Man is trying to get women to notice him," Laver said, "and I don't think his interest in clothing and cologne... is necessarily going to make him effeminate."

GEN. ALLARD

He Was Offered Post in Cabinet

By HAROLD MORRISON
BRUSSELS (CP) — Gen. Jean Allard, chief of the Canadian defence staff, says he turned down a cabinet post in the Canadian government in 1955, "and I thank God I did."

"Now I believe it is too late to be a politician," added the 54-year-old soldier as he wound up his meetings with NATO military chiefs last week.

Normally, generals retire at 55 but usually chiefs of staff get one or two extensions.

Allard said in an interview that ranged from the prospects of NATO's new mobile destroyer force to the war in Vietnam.

"I would not have been able to obtain the experience I now have gained, and I would make a poor politician. I am a very orderly person and I don't think I would fit the political life very well."

HAPPIER THINKING

Asked whether he would write his memoirs when he retires, Allard, popularly known as a fighting man's soldier, replied: "Never in your bloody life. I am happier thinking than writing."

Allard said the new naval mobile force planned by NATO would provide a good psychological lift for the local people in countries where the destroyer force visited. He anticipated the force, to which Canada may contribute one destroyer, would move from the North Atlantic region to other areas—even the Mediterranean where the Soviet Union has built up a big naval presence.

He did not think the NATO force would deter the Russians but would make the local people in the region feel they have not been forgotten.

Allard praised his Canadian forces highly. He said one of the hardest tasks in recent years was the move of the Canadian NATO squadrons from France to Germany after President de Gaulle ordered NATO forces from French territory.

"The way the Canadian Air Force moved from France to Germany without loss of total effectiveness was the greatest tribute to the profession. The air division is sacred—bless their souls."

Allard, a onetime military attaché in Moscow, said he firmly believes the Russians have concluded that atomic warfare cannot be profitable under any circumstances.

The Russians are "good chess players," he said, and it may be a fact that the West is not doing enough to counter the Russian moves. The West may continue to lose a bit of ground on the grand strategy play but eventually the truth will win out, he said.

More efforts had to be made to show the underdeveloped countries the West had no axe to grind. More had to be done in those struggling for better

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

She Won't Be Late With This Greeting

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Right now I feel a little like the white rabbit in Alice in Wonderland.

I'm hurrying! I'm scurrying! And like that rabbit I'm looking at my watch and saying to myself "Oh dear! Oh dear! Oh dear! I shall be too late!"

The hours are rushing by. Christmas Day is only a hop and a skip away. And like hundreds of others in this city I'm still wrestling with all the pre-holiday preparations that made "the day" a success.

Oh dear! Oh dear! I shall be too late!

Each morning brings its quota of greeting cards. As I look quickly through them I find friends I have missed somehow in sending out my own good wishes.

So, I stop in the middle of a bit of work and try to make amends by writing a short Christmas letter.

Until day before yesterday I was able to keep abreast of this well-known bit of Christmas confusion. But I'm losing ground now. The cards are mounting on my desk.

Oh dear! Oh dear! I shall be too late!

There are gifts to be wrapped. I look at them. I turn over the colorful paper and ribbons. But I don't seem to have an original idea in my head.

Some people can do gifts up in shapes and sizes that keep the recipients guessing. But not me.

All I seem able to do is fold the paper around them and after a struggle to get the Scotch tape on the parcel and not around my fingers, to add a bit of red-ribbon.

Even this simple method of packaging is getting ahead of me. The gifts are ready. The paper and ribbon, sticky tape and tags are waiting.

Oh dear! Oh dear! I shall be too late!

I look around my apartment. Christmas decorations are sitting in the middle of the living room floor waiting to be put in place. Bits of string and ribbons, paper and opened envelopes litter the dinette.

There's dust on the furniture. Dishes to be washed in the kitchen. And it's almost impossible to get into what is supposedly my den (I call it a glory hole). It's cluttered with everything that I've pushed out of sight for the moment.

All this must be changed before tomorrow. For family and friends will be dropping in over the weekend.

Weekend, did I say. That brings to mind the fact that I must think about food and supplies.

The list is here on my desk. It's been ready for days. But somehow I haven't got around to doing the shopping.

Cards, gifts, decorations, dusting, cleaning and shopping for food! Oh dear! Oh dear! I shall be too late!

There's only one place I'm perfectly sure I will be early. Not late.

As it happens this is my last column before December 25. So, I'm going to write my wishes for you NOW.

May the true meaning of Christmas be deeper, its friendships stronger and its hopes brighter as it comes to you this year.

Merry Christmas!

AFTER TRAVELLING 5,780 miles, British Columbia's Centennial gavel finally came to rest Thursday. The gavel started its journey through the province on January 3 when with a sharp rap it opened a municipal council meeting in New Westminster. In June, some 139 meetings later, the gavel chaired its last meeting in the Victoria City Council Chamber. Until Thursday it had remained in the possession of Mayor Hugh Stephen. Late in the morning the gavel was provided a police escort in the form of Const. L. B. Belfrey, left, who with Mayor Stephen handed the gavel to Lieut.-Gov. George Pearkes, extreme right, who in turn passed it on to Centennial Commission chairman L. J. Wallace for safe keeping.

Island's Industrial Brownout Helps Hydro Meet Demands

As temperatures plunged to record lows in Greater Vancouver this week power consumption shot to a record height, B.C. Hydro co-chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum said Thursday night.

He said the total draw on the provincial grid reached 2,156,000 kilowatts Wednesday night when temperatures went to 16 degrees in Vancouver.

This exceeded by 6,000 kilowatts the consumption reached the previous Wednesday for a record which Dr. Shrum then thought would stand the remainder of this winter.

Warmer weather has eased the possibility that more exceptional load demands will burden the utility's network "but we

Chamber Hits Survey Release

The president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce said Thursday the findings of an economic base survey even if true should not have been made public at this time.

The survey, conducted by city employed economist Malcolm Gould, revealed that the future of Victoria lay in the development of existing industries rather than in attracting new heavy industry to the city.

Mr. Gould forecast that because of marketing difficulties and the heavy concentration of population in the Vancouver area, Victoria had little hope of enticing major manufacturers to locate here.

Mr. Armstrong said payrolls from heavy industry were a clear gain to the city and did not require the subsidies such as tourism and the retirement group required.

In an interview earlier this week Mr. Gould did not claim that heavy industry was not valuable to the economy of a community. He did state that he saw little hope of Victoria ever attracting more than minor owner-manager industries.

Mr. Armstrong said he was disappointed that the Chamber of Commerce had not been consulted in the preparation of the report.

"So far as I know we have never been consulted in this matter and I would certainly like to know where the facts have been obtained," Mr. Armstrong said.

Navy Reservists Awarded Medal

The commanding officer and eight other members of HMCS Malahat, Victoria's naval reserve division, have been awarded the Canadian Centennial Medal.

Those receiving the award average more than 10 years' service with the division. The list includes Cmdr. W. F. Walker, Chief Petty Officers J. Smith, W. J. Kittson, D. M. Harvey, L. B. Goodwin and F. E. Pearson; Petty Officers D. C. Reynolds and W. H. Lyons and Wren Petty Officer P. E. Burch.

It was the first legal development in weeks in the assassination probe, which seemed to have been shoved aside recently by Louisiana's massive investigation of racket operations.

The action against Bradley came less than two months before Shaw's scheduled trial. A bond of $10,000 was recommended for Bradley, the same amount posted by Shaw last March.

A California officer said Bradley could not be arrested on an out-of-state complaint without an order from Gov. Ronald Reagan. But Garrison's charges were a "joke," he said.

The arrest of Bradley is imminent, within the next few days," chief investigator Louis Ivon said.

Bradley was playing host to a bible study class from his church at his home when he heard the news that Garrison had filed charges against him. He said at first he thought the charges were a "joke."

Garrison filed a bill of particulars Wednesday charging that Bradley "did willfully and unlawfully conspire with others to murder John F. Kennedy."

Garrison's office would not provide any other information about Bradley, nor the "others" mentioned in the charge.

Attorneys for Clay L. Shaw, the other man charged with conspiring to assassinate the president, said they had never heard of Bradley. Neither had New Orleans newsmen.

Bradley was identified as West Coast representative of Dr. Carl McIntire, president of the International Council of Churches, which has its headquarters at Collingswood, N.J.

McIntire is currently in a hassle over the renewal of a licence for a Media, Pa., radio station because several groups have said his radio program is anti-Negro and anti-semitic.

Bradley also told a California radio station (KHI) he had never been in Dallas before in his life until the spring of this year.

"I drove through there on my vacation last March or April and that was the first time I've ever been there (in Dallas)," he said.

"I know that he has nothing,"

HOME GARDEN

Get Ready Now For Tree Spraying

By JACK BEASTALL

One particular job that should be given thought before the stores close Saturday is the spraying of the peach tree for peach leaf curl.

There may be a spray already on hand that has been successful in the past. If so, check to see that enough is left and the concentrate is still in good condition.

For those gardeners seeking a suitable spray to use, the CDA is now recommending a product called Puraspra. It is a good fungicide and it does not stain painted surfaces.

The trees were given their first spray in September as the crop had been picked, and this second spray is designed to catch any spores that were missed and those which found their way into the scales of the leaf buds.

To obtain any measure of success every portion of every twig, branch and the trunk, must be thoroughly covered, including the back surface (wall side) of trees trained to house walls.

The spray must also be driven between the bud scales and this requires high pressure equipment.

Orchardists are advised to use a pressure of 250 pounds per square inch, whereas the best home garden equipment will give only 30 to 50 pounds.

Complete control cannot be expected in the home garden, but a good spray, properly applied at the highest pressure possible will go a long way to reduce the infection.

The work should be done between Christmas and New Year in a frost-free, rain-free period, if such should occur. With everything ready we should be able to take advantage of any suitable break.

Hart Funeral Set Saturday

Funeral services will be held in Christ Church Cathedral Saturday at 10:30 a.m. for Capt. Frederick Gordon Hart, who died Wednesday in the Veterans' Hospital at the age of 68.

THOUGHT CHARGES A JOKE, BRADLEY TELLS NEWSMEN

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison was reported Thursday trying to arrange the arrest of Edgar Eugene Bradley, the second person he has formally charged with conspiring to assassinate President John F. Kennedy.

In North Hollywood, Calif., Bradley denied any connection with the assassination and said he was shocked at Garrison's action.

"This man is either being highly paid to do this or he's off his rocker," Bradley said.

He told a television station (WVUE) here in a telephone interview that "I know nothing about what he is talking about." He expressed surprise that "a man will come out and ruin the reputation of somebody who has no involvement."

Bradley also told a California radio station (KHI) he had never been in Dallas before in his life until the spring of this year.

AROUND OUR SHORES

A Special Yule Tradition For Floating Population

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

At the sign of the "Fish and Crab," there are weathered pilings, lashed together.

The interior is dominated by a sewing machine with an outsized spool of thread.

Although the name is admirably suited to the pelagic nature of the enterprise, "Fish" and "Crab" were chosen because they are the astrological signs of proprietor John Wilson and his wife Gale.

Using canvas and leather as their medium, the Wilsons create objects d'art which are also useful on boats. Duffel bags in many colors. Sail bags. Canvas hatch covers. Awnings. And custom leather work.

For the past month, the Fish and Crab has occupied a small shop just down Government Street from the Post Office. Before coming to Victoria, John operated a similar shop in Banff named the Canvas Loft.

Following a stint in the U.S. Navy, John worked in a commercial art and sign shop at Kona, on the "big" island, Hawaii. As well, the 26-year-old craftsman made sailbags at Honolulu's Ala Wai Yacht Basin.

During his six years in the Islands, John logged much inter-island travel-time, sailing on a variety of boats: catamarans, a 35-foot Tahiti ketch, a Seabird yawl, and a 26-foot converted whale boat. He also lived for one month in Kauai's famous and inaccessible valley, Kalalau.

Boats are still an integral part of John's existence. Currently, the Wilsons live on a 31-foot sailboat which they are caretaking until the return of a globetrotting owner.

During his six years in the Islands, John logged much inter-island travel-time, sailing on a variety of boats: catamarans, a 35-foot Tahiti ketch, a Seabird yawl, and a 26-foot converted whale boat. He also lived for one month in Kauai's famous and inaccessible valley, Kalalau.

Boats are still an integral part of John's existence. Currently, the Wilsons live on a 31-foot sailboat which they are caretaking until the return of a globetrotting owner.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Richard Danner, age 11, of Emmaus, Pennsylvania, for his question:

What is the law of conservation?

Conservation may be either an everyday word or a special term belonging in the world of science. In either case, it is a three-ringed operation involving collecting, saving and spending. It works on a massive or minuscule scale, fast or slow, in a busy bee and an exploding star.

We have conservation laws to protect our nation's wonderlands and wild life for future generations. Sensible people strive to make these laws work. But a scientist does not strive to make his special law of conservation work. It is a strict cosmic law that works by itself. It governs matter and the various forms of energy. Matter and energy are the dynamic ingredients of the sciences of physics and nuclear physics. The chemist and the mechanic also must work hand in glove with the law of conservation.

Heat and light are forms of energy. There is chemical energy, nuclear energy, gravity and mechanical energy and the energy of plain old muscle power. The law of conservation applies to all of them. When its rules are known and applied, any form of energy can be changed or converted into any other form of energy. A waterfall gathers force from the pulling energy of gravity. So we gather a placid reservoir and release controlled waterfalls through the spillways of a dam. The force of the water spins turbines to generate electricity. Gravity energy is converted to electrical energy.

A coal-burning boiler creates the steam to run a locomotive. In this case, heat energy is converted into mechanical energy. The energy of chemical activities in a candle are converted into a flickering light. The modern world uses countless devices to convert one form of energy into another. But the speed and quality of each operation varies. This is because the law of conservation insists on set ratios.

Changes Energy

A precise amount of steamy heat is required to move the parts of a locomotive and pull the wheels of a train of a certain weight. Designers and engineers must know the exact ratios required to convert one form of energy into another in all our different devices. Otherwise a device could prove wasteful or uneconomical. It is more economical to use a boiler than to employ the human muscle required to shove a train. It would be wasteful to use 10 boilers when a train requires only one.

A speeding truck converts gasoline into mechanical energy. When the first A-bomb was released, the nuclear fuel released enough energy to run millions of speeding trucks for days. What's more, it proved that matter can be converted into energy and this process also obeys the law of conservation. Designers know the exact ratios involved in converting nuclear fuel into the heat required by a power plant.

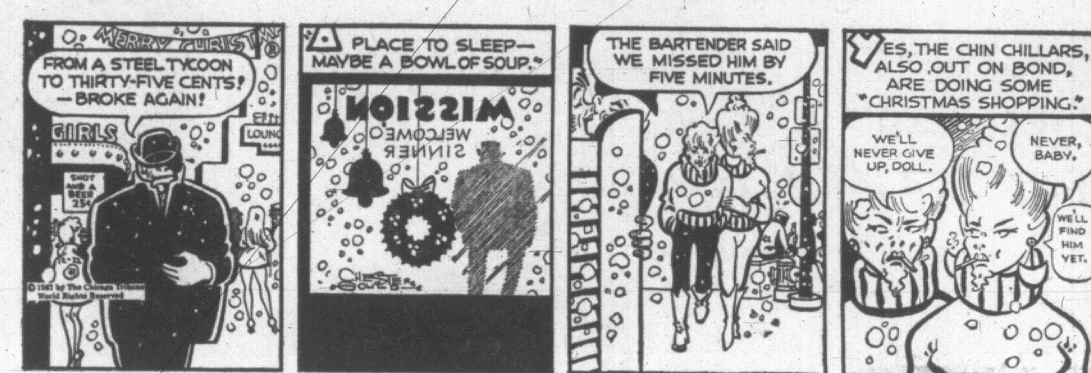

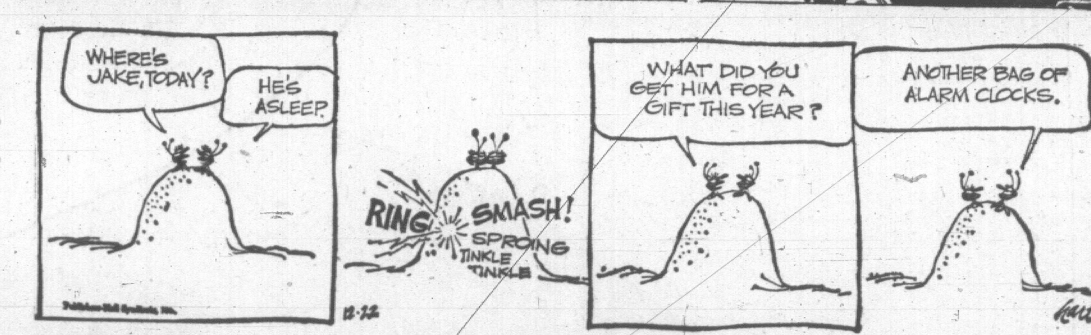

The law of conservation rules that energy can be changed or handed on, but never lost. It governs our machines and works on a global scale—with solar energy, winds and weather. It works with gravity on a cosmic scale. It also converts the matter of the stars into energy and switches around to create particles of matter from cosmic energies. Matter, it seems, is a sort of frozen state of energy. All the busy activities of our teeming universe are governed by the law of conservation.

Andy sends a 14" World Book Globe to Hugh Still, age 12, of Barnwell, South Carolina, for his question:

Who was the first man to reach the South Pole?

The bleak region of Antarctica was found piece by piece through the past 200 years. Several south polar islands were discovered early in the 18th century and later, in the 1770s. The famous Captain James Cook sailed clear around the glacial land mass. In the next century, several of its shorelines were charted. In 1895, two Norwegians became the first to set foot on the icy ground of Antarctica. In the 1880s, Charles Wilkes of the United States had found Wilkes Land and other evidence to show that Antarctica was an immense continent.

But land explorations of the bitter region had to wait until the 20th Century. From 1901 to 1903, the British explorer Robert Scott spent three winters exploring the cruel territory. In 1909, the expedition of Ernest Shackleton came closer than 100 miles to the South Pole but failed to reach the goal. The first to reach the South Pole was Roald Amundsen of Norway. The year was 1911. A few weeks later Robert Scott also succeeded but perished on the return journey.

Menopausal Problems Explained

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Many women now write me saying it distresses them to be able to get so little information as to the menopause—information such as could relieve the m. of much worry. Thousands are wondering whether they should be taking estrogen pills to make up for the ovarian function that they lost when they stopped menstruating and their ovaries shrunk up.

I hope that women no longer are being told by their physicians that ovarian hormone must not be taken because it can produce cancer and other diseases. Actually, at a big convention of gynecologists held some two years ago, the leading professors of gynecology in this country agreed with what I have been saying for 30 years—that there is no evidence to support this fear of cancer. Now a curious miracle has happened, and already many able physicians are giving estrogen to women to protect them from getting a recurrence of cancer of the breast or of the womb—which shows that the old fear of estrogen is largely gone.

For 30 years, I have been giving estrogen to hundreds of my menopausal patients—practically always with good results. Never have I had a case in which estrogen seemed to have produced cancer.

Many an unhappy woman who was very nervous and so troubled with flushes and sweats and tizzies that she thought she was headed for a mental hospital, was so promptly helped and straightened out that she was most grateful. Some menopausal women came complaining that estrogen was not helping, but I soon found that they were not taking enough of it.

Now the time has come when perhaps all menopausal women should be given some estrogen, especially when they need it, and perhaps even when they don't yet need it. Also, it looks now as if many should keep taking it for the rest of their days.

I was just reading that many physicians now feel as I do, that with the shrinkage of the ovaries and the resultant loss of estrogen (female hormone) from the body, if the woman will keep taking estrogen, the skin will remain less wrinkled; perhaps the bones of their spine will not so lose lime-salts as to cave in and give the woman a "buffalo hump."

Perhaps the woman's blood pressure will stay low; perhaps there will be less danger of getting heart attacks; perhaps the breasts will stay looking firm; also, the vaginal lining will stay stronger and much less likely to cause distress after intercourse.

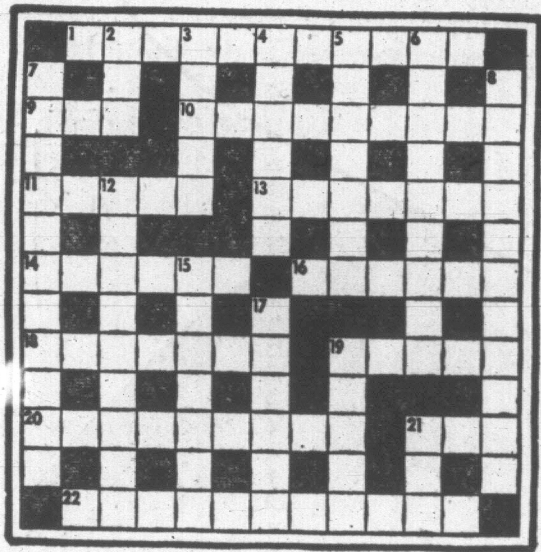

Doubtless their nervous system will more often remain comfortable. Perhaps many a woman will remain a better wife to her husband; also she may feel more vigorous.

There is one important hint about taking female hormone, and this is not to take always just the tiny dose listed in the books, but a dose big enough to produce the desired calming of the nervous system. How does a woman find this dose? She can start with one little pill a day and then take two or three or four—until her breasts get sore; then she should cut the dose down until her breasts are comfortable. That dose is the one she should then keep taking.

PEARSON TO PUSH INNER CABINET PLAN

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Prime Minister L. B. Pearson will be creating a powerful inner cabinet before he retires in April.

Mr. Pearson has long held a theory that the British practice of having a strong inner group in the cabinet would provide sounder and more efficient administrations.

Now he has disclosed his intention to create such a strong inner group to be responsible for federal planning, supervising major expenditures and establishing priorities for spending.

The prime minister in creating a powerful inner cabinet committee would likely appoint the ministers heading the key spending departments such as finance, trade, revenue, defence, agriculture, health and welfare and external affairs.

THERAPEUTIC ABORTIONS

Two Hospitals Favor Move If Law Changed

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Two of Greater Victoria's public hospitals will go along with therapeutic abortions if they are legalized and the third will not make up its mind until the law has been changed.

Officials at Royal Jubilee Hospital and Rest Haven Hospital in Sidney today said their procedures would be made to conform with the current amendment bill to the Criminal Code if it becomes law.

Rapid Approval Forecast

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Trudeau Thursday predicted sweeping Criminal Code changes introduced in the Commons Thursday would win rapid and overwhelming approval.

"Parliament has shown in the past week that it is prepared to deal with so-called progressive legislation," the liberal-minded 46-year-old justice minister said.

He evidently was referring to legislation adopted by Parliament this week to broaden the grounds for divorce.

The Criminal Code changes brought forward by Mr. Trudeau, who has been justice minister for eight months, are the most extensive since a revision in the early 1950s.

Given first reading Thursday, the changes won't be debated in detail until Parliament returns from Christmas recess Jan. 22.

MAJOR CHANGES MADE
Four of the major areas of change:

—Legalization of therapeutic abortions where a hospital committee certifies that a continued pregnancy could endanger a mother's life or health;

—Mandatory breath analysis tests for persons suspected of impaired driving;

—A far-reaching law that would allow federal or provincial governments to hold lotteries.

—A measure legalizing homosexual acts committed in private by two consenting adults.

Conflict in the Criminal Code provisions on abortion have made hospitals and doctors

Mainland Woman Murdered

VANCOUVER (CP)—A North Vancouver mother of three children was found slain today in bushland near Britannia Beach, 20 miles north of Vancouver.

Two North Vancouver youths and a 16-year-old North Vancouver girl were held at Corvallis, Ore., for questioning in connection with the stabbing of Mrs. Rose Vollet, 41-year-old wife of a North Vancouver fireman.

They were arrested Thursday night in Corvallis and turned over to Marion County, Ore., authorities.

They were given 1 ounce of liquor every half hour and a driving test after each drink.

MEN LAUGH, JOKE

17 Workers Rescued From Water Tunnel

ORMAN, Calif. (AP)—Seventeen men, trapped for 19 hours behind a cave-in inside a snowcapped mountain, crawled through a narrow passageway to safety today.

A rescue team dug out the men from the entrance to a 1 1/2-mile-long state water project tunnel in the Tehachapi mountains, which separate northern and southern California.

Fellow workmen had tried to reach the men from three directions, but feared the men might be trapped as long as four or five days. However, one team, digging head-on through 80 feet of dirt, rock and steel blocking the tunnel—made rapid progress after finding the collapsed steel roof had formed a partial passageway.

QUICK WORK
"No one felt we would never get out," said one of the trapped men, H. C. Harrison, a construction inspector. But we thought it would take a week to get us out.

"How they got to us as fast as they did I'll never know," The trapped men laughed.

William R. Gianelli, director of the state water resources department, said a hydraulically-operated digging machine was being used Thursday to change the grade in the tunnel, and it collapsed because workmen apparently didn't replace all the steel ribs and plates used for support.

They Were (Hic) Good Drivers
... After the 13th Drink
EDMONTON (CP)—Two Edmonton men got drunk and drove.

Barry Sullivan and Bill Rodger, both announcers with Edmonton radio station CJCA, were trying to prove that alcohol and gasoline don't mix. They succeeded.

They were given 1 ounce of liquor every half hour and a driving test after each drink.

JUDGMENT MARRED
But the testing officer said he wasn't able to judge distance properly, "and shouldn't be on the road."

By this time Mr. Rodger was also jovial, but his driving wasn't quite as bad.

After 10 drinks, Mr. Sullivan's speech and vision were impaired. He staggered slightly while walking. On his driving test, he knocked over poles he was supposed to drive between.

Mr. Rodger was also impaired after 13 drinks. Police said both would have been arrested if spotted driving.

In the final driving test, Mr. Sullivan had 10 times as many points scored against him as in the first. Mr. Rodger had five times as many.

Johnson Expected In Rome

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Pope Paul offered today to mediate in the Vietnam war as the expectation grew here that President Johnson would visit him before Christmas.

The Pope, in his Christmas address to the College of Cardinals, said he was saddened and amazed that all attempts at impartial mediation had been foiled and said he has dared to offer his collaboration.

Well-informed sources here said today it was likely President Johnson would call on the Pope around Christmas eve on his way back from Australia.

But no confirmation was available from the Vatican, Italian authorities, or the American embassy.

Vatican sources said if the president should wish to come, the Pope, who has been conducting a personal campaign for peace in Vietnam, would be glad to receive him.

The Pope told the cardinals: "We are saddened and amazed to observe how each disinterested offer of mediation has been made in vain, and each attempt at honest and peaceful negotiations rejected, while an honorable solution to the grievous and threatening dispute seems to us still possible."

Pope Paul added: "Being aloof from all party interests, and impassioned only by the human values involved, we have dared to offer our collaboration... in the most effective way we may be permitted and requested, for the re-establishment of true peace."

The Pope repeated his earlier appeals for a stop to the American bombing of North Vietnam.

He also called on the North Vietnamese to give a "sign of a serious desire for peace" and indirectly called on the Soviet Union to use its influence to this purpose.

Leaders Pay Tribute
To Memory of Holt
MELBOURNE (AP)—The late Australian Prime Minister Holt was revered in a solemn memorial service today in St. Paul's Anglican Cathedral.

He was eulogized before the biggest assembly of world leaders Australia has ever known: Prince Charles, heir to the British throne; President Johnson; the prime ministers of Britain and New Zealand; a cabinet minister from Canada; Northern Development Minister Arthur Laing, and the heads of state or top men from most Asian neighbors—Japan, India, Indonesia, Laos, Cambodia, Malaysia, Singapore, Thailand, Nationalist China, South Vietnam, The Philippines and South Korea.

All these top people came at a moment's notice because it was only five days since Holt disappeared while swimming in the surf at Portsea and three days since it was decided to hold a memorial service today.

About 10,000 people stood in the mild-summer sunshine during the service, because only 1,600 ticket-holders could get inside.

CHILDREN OF ASIA FUND
It's Orphanage or Death
For This Korean Family

By KATHRINE THOMAS
How unbearably hard it is for Canadian mothers to part with their children when they go to a summer camp.

Can we even imagine what it would be like to be forced to part with our child forever?

There were eight members in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Kim Kyung Ae, the two parents and six small children.

They lived in an old, straw-thatched hut, consisting of only one room and a tiny adjacent kitchen place on the slope of Yoo-dai, the sacred mountain protecting the city of Mokpo.

Since the family did not possess any land, there was not even an entrance gate leading to the hut.

Both parents were daily workers in the nearby vegetable fields.

But some time ago, Mrs. Kim contracted tuberculosis. Still she continued to work, to earn a few cents a day.

Now the drought that afflicted South Korea last July has wiped out their employment.

It was impossible to feed all the children, crying with hunger.

So to keep them alive, Mrs. Kim had to place three of her children in an orphanage.

And because they have no money, they cannot repair their hut. The roof is leaking and the log supporting the ceiling is threatening to collapse.

They live by chance from day to day.

With the arrival of the cold season, they are now collecting leaves from the mountain, to keep them warm through the winter.

LBJ Salutes U.S. Pilots In Thailand

KHORAT, Thailand (AP)—United States President Johnson flew here secretly tonight on the latest leg of a continuing mystery trip, telling American combat pilots "I want to look each of you in the eye."

Johnson flew to this American-built Thai air force base, which plays a role in the air war over Vietnam, after attending memorial rites in Australia for his Vietnam ally, Prime Minister Harold Holt.

The White House staff had sought to keep the trip here secret. Word got out about the Khorat stop, but a secrecy lid still was on the president's future travel plans.

Speaking to men in uniform here, Johnson said: "I realize that an old man is a poor excuse for your wife and your family and your loved ones, but I wanted so much to be with you at Christmas. I want to look each of you in the eye."

There was much speculation that he might visit South Vietnam itself, although his staff refused to say where he would go next.

There have also been rumors the President would stop in Rome to talk with Pope Paul.

TALKS WITH ALLIES
During his 36 hours in Australia, Johnson talked with the interim prime minister, John McEwen, and leaders of South Vietnam, South Korea, New Zealand, Thailand and the Philippines—U.S. allies in the Vietnam war—as well as with British Prime Minister Wilson and Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore.

His meeting with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu ended with a declaration

Prizes Charles, No. 1 under protocol because he was the Queen's representative in a Commonwealth country sat in the front pew at the left of the church, with Johnson behind him.

Canada's representative was Northern Development Minister Arthur Laing.

Johnson was believed to have had informal talks with Prime Minister Wilson at Government House.

Arthur Mayse

Last night we set out to finish our Christmas shopping, but once loose amid the downtown glitter-and-glow, found that our intellects had gone completely numb. Neither of us had made lists, either, so my dear mouse and I wandered from one shimmering Aladdin's cavern to another, enchanted by what we saw and heard.

Observe yonder couple in loving argument, leaning toward each other—necks outstretched like geese.

"Any thing else," says the husband, "but not a steam iron! What kind of a Christmas present is that anyhow?"

"But," his consort persists, sweetly stubborn, "It just happens I have this secret yearning for a steam iron."

She'll get it, and no doubt something frivolous to boot.

Here's a lissome chick helping her love choose a sweater, and over there a pleasing-plump matron all in a glow.

"Let's get the turkey first," says she—and that strikes us as an excellent idea.

These are the sights and sound, of pre-Christmas, a time in which Victorians spend madly and happily, and every over-burdened store clerk is a hero.

On my desk today is a marvellous book prepared by Hornby Island school children as a Centennial project, and passed on to me by publisher friend Gray Campbell of Sidney. In their own handwriting, on a sheet of multi-graphed pages embellished by the kids' sketches, they offer Hornby's history.

From wild flowers and wildlife to stories of the pioneers, it's all there, and very well presented, too.

In those 28 pages, I find a wealth of concise information. Did you know, for instance, that small cactus with painfully sharp spines grow on Hornby, or that the island is rich in petroglyphs?

Consider this account by Pauline Bajkov, a Grade 4 historian:

"Once there was a funny Irish man who lived at Yellow Rock. Once he strung a cable from Yellow Rock to a strong tree on Denman Island. Then he got a wheel without tubing. He got two boards and put them on each side of the wheel on the cable. He got a box and nailed the boards on the box. It worked real well. One day when he was going across the cable broke and luckily someone saw him. They rescued him. He never hooked it up again."

Nor can I resist this observation by Hornby booster Charlie Stonehouse, Grade 5:

"Even if you go fishing and don't catch anything, you should be glad you're in such beautiful surroundings." Proceeds of the history will go toward the purchase of yet another mobile school unit for Oxfam's education program. I hope that it will be available to Victoria purchasers next year.

Just when I get to thinking that there really is nothing new under the sun, along comes someone with a novel and highly original notion.

Dave Prosser, who describes himself as a "hey-you" worker in Canadian Aid for Vietnam Civilians, tells me Victoria branch of the organization is planning a surplus Christmas present sale, to be held in the former Woodward's store, Douglas at Courtney, soon after New Year's. Date will be announced when settled on.

"Our idea," says Mr. Prosser, who hatched the scheme, "is to take advantage of the fact that practically everybody gets at least one present he would be glad to part with. A purple necktie with yellow spots, perhaps, or a wall thermometer when he already has three."

Surplus gifts will be gratefully received at the building from noon to 2 p.m., any day between now and the sale.

Canadian Aid for Vietnam Civilians has already sent $44,500 in medical aid and baby clothing for Red Cross distribution in both South and North Vietnam.

A smart gimmick: I seem to remember a certain bow tie that was my poison, but might just be someone else's meat!

They Don't All Recover by Christmas

Miraculous recoveries often occur just before Christmas in children's wards but for some Christmas Day in hospital is unavoidable.

St. Joseph's and Royal Jubilee Hospitals each expect 20 or more youngsters won't get home for the big day.

But for them, everybody bends the rules. Brothers and sisters, usually barred, are allowed to visit and visiting hours start early.

Santa Claus—who makes his own rules—has a merry old time spreading good cheer.

Outsiders, too, don't forget the children. Above, Sandra Cronk smiles as she shows tasteful home she made of candy for an office party. After the party she decided the children's ward at St. Joseph's should be its next resting place.

The patients are Robert Hardy and Maureen Mikitka.

Another Christmas scene (right) occurred at the Royal Jubilee Hospital where assistant head nurse Pat Grayston helps Garry Holland hang wall decorations while two companions play mother and say "Higher", "Lower" or "More to the right".

Christmas Day visiting hours at St. Joseph's are 11 a.m. to noon and 2 to 7 p.m.; at Royal Jubilee 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Early Start Due On Headerhouse

Construction will begin early next year on a $150,000-$200,000 building at the Forest Research Laboratory on Burnside Road, director Ray Lejeune announced today.

The one-storey structure will ease crowding caused by delay in plans for a $4,000,000 wing which would more than double the capacity of the laboratory.

The major expansion was caught in the federal government's recent spending slash.

The new building 40 by 138 feet, will be built to the south of the present laboratory on the 22-acre Burnside property.

Diversionsary Monoeuvre By Soldiers

The true spirit of Christmas is being shown by soldiers of the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, based at Work Point Barracks.

Most of the money which had been destined to provide presents for their own children at a battalion Christmas party has been diverted instead to make the season a little more enjoyable for several needy families of Greater Victoria.

On Christmas Eve, a soldier from the Queen's Own Rifles, accompanied by a Boy Scout from the 5th Arbutus Troop, will deliver well-filled food hampers which will hold everything from turkey to bread and butter. They will also carry gifts for all pre-teen-aged children in the families.

The needy families, who have from one child to 15, were found through the co-operation of the Salvation Army and the Saint Vincent De Paul organization.

Mooing Won't End Wooing Of Waistline Watchers

The hard-working cow, supplier of man's basic diet, needs for centuries, is in for a shock!

But it's sure to be welcomed by waistline watchers. B.C. dairymen and livestock experts this year decided to make the cow a producer of milk with less fats.

Less fats, or cream, means more proteins.

This is quite a change for the noble animal if you consider that for the past 75 years the quality of her milk has been judged on its fat content—fats used for cream and butter.

She was even showered with honors—medals and ribbons—at fairs if she was a top-producer of a rich milk with a high fat content. But in a few years she will be in disgrace if she persists in doing the same.

No one knows what the cows think about it all, but all the mooing in the world won't change the decision of dairymen, according to Kenneth Savage, B.C. dairy commissioner.

He explained that a health problem is one of the reasons for the trend towards producing milk with a lower fat, higher protein content.

"The average North American is overweight," he said. Milk is one of the best and cheapest ways of obtaining proteins.

Meat is another, but is more expensive, he pointed out.

He said dairymen would have switched to a milk with less fats long ago if a method had been devised to test the fluid milk for its protein content.

But this year a method was found with the introduction of infra-red milk analysis testing equipment.

"We can now make quick and accurate tests for proteins," Mr. Savage said. "Before we could only judge the quality of milk by its fat content."

He said the change will be brought about by selecting cows which produce milk with less fats and breeding them. It would take between 20 and 30 years to establish large herds.

Some cows for some unknown reason, produce a milk with less fats, he explained. These are the cows which are now in demand.

SNOW DISAPPEARS IN SEA OF RAIN

White Christmas Just a Dream

Dreams of a white Christmas were washed away today but hopes for a dry one looked better.

Almost as suddenly as it came, a foot of snow that fell on a wide area up-Island Thursday was melting away, leaving dented fenders, closed schools, minor power blackouts and plenty of slush.

Traffic was slowed and in many cases paralyzed at the height of the storm.

Victoria escaped with 1.2 inches of rain and virtually no snow but Patricia Bay Airport had 3.5 inches of snow among its 2.89 inches of precipitation.

Air Canada flights to Vancouver were cancelled Thursday night but all went on schedule today except the 6:50 a.m. flight to Vancouver, which was cancelled.

Heavy overnight rains moderated into scattered showers today. There were a few reports of flooded basements in the area and the Interurban-Quayle intersection was barricaded while crews worked to ease flooding.

Some showers were expected Saturday but a storm system thought likely to arrive on Christmas Day may bring rain on Sunday instead and leave Monday cloudy and relatively dry.

There was no chance of more snow as milder air and brisk breezes cleared the last traces of the season's first major snowfall.

The rain brought Victoria's total precipitation for the year to 30.34 inches, three inches above the total for all of last year.

The 1.2 total for the 24-hour period was the highest since Oct. 27 when 1.56 inches fell.

Nanaimo reported 3.32 inches of combined rain and snow and the Comox Valley had 3.52.

Tofino had 3.37 inches but snowfall was light.

The Alberni-Tofino highway is reported clear.

Trailers Jackknifed

Main traffic jam up-Island was on the Courtney-Campbell River highway after two truck trailers jackknifed. About 400 cars were backed up by the accident.

Workers were out in Duncan today clearing heavy snow off flat roofs and mopping up flooded basements in several areas.

The snow shut down logging operations in the district.

Motorists were caught without chains and snow tires and steep hills were clogged with vehicles at the storm's height. Some changes were laid on Comox Hill for driving without the required equipment.

Police in Campbell River said continued road travel warnings were issued during the storm and were mostly ignored by motorists. Traffic in the community was "paralyzed" for a while as a result.

A school bus slid into a ditch in the Alberni Valley but no injuries were reported. Many

Police to Nail 'The Spoilers'

Surprise Checks, Patrols Ordered

Police are out to stop the spoilers.

Drivers over the Christmas holiday weekend will meet heavy traffic patrols and frequent spot checks.

And motorists who have had too much to drink will spend Christmas in a cell.

"We won't tolerate anyone ruining anybody else's Christmas," said Sgt. Al Hardwood of the city police traffic department this morning.

Weather has already cast a shadow over the holiday for a number of drivers as snow, ice and slush turned Greater Victoria roads greasy Thursday.

A 78-year-old man spent Thursday night in hospital after he was struck by a car at Rose and Hillside shortly after 8 p.m.

But J. D. Emery, 2676 Rose St., is in good condition.

City police said he was crossing Rose when a car westbound on Hillside and driven by Edward Deboucier, 3327 Cedar Hill Rd., struck him as it turned south on Rose.

TWO HURT

A rear-end collision on Douglas near Burnside an hour earlier sent two people to hospital for treatment.

Stanley Birch, 5183 Patricia Bay Highway, and his passenger, Penny Birch, 15, were hurt when their car was rammed by an auto driven by Randall Ariss of HMCS Qu'Appelle.

Mr. Birch suffered bruised legs while Penny received head injuries when her head shattered the windshield.

HEAVY DAMAGE

The Birch car was driven forward into an auto driven by Isidor Schmidt, 3431 Lovat St. Police said all three vehicles were heavily damaged.

Mrs. Mary Janet Gray, 1888 Ventura Way, was eastbound down a steep hill on Haliburton near Cordova Bay when her car began to gain speed as it slid out of control on ice.

The auto flipped on its side when it struck an embankment, slid down the road to bounce off the embankment on the other side and right itself.

Mrs. Gray was uninjured. Damage was estimated at $200.

HALF CITY'S BOILERMAKERS OUT OF WORK

Unemployment in the biggest shipyard union has reached almost 50 per cent, it was disclosed today.

There are 378 members of the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers out of work, said Local 191 business agent Nell Hindle.

At the beginning of this week, the union had 300 of its 800 members out. Other unions reported anything up to one-third unemployment.

The jobless total now is about 700.

Mr. Hindle said 25 men were released Thursday from Victoria Machinery Depot, which is shutting its shipyard at the end of the month, and 21 were laid off Wednesday and Thursday from Yarrow's.

FOR NEEDY

Warm Hearts To Provide Hot Meals

A program of hot lunches for anyone in need was announced Thursday by the proprietor of a Vancouver Street boarding house.

Mrs. Pauline Hartman said, "We've got enough stew for a week."

By that time she expects help in the project.

"We're living in our Lord's hands," she states.

Mrs. Hartman and her husband, Dennis, who works at a plywood mill, have been Victoria residents for 25 years and much of that time has been devoted to helping people.

431 LAST YEAR

Several charitable groups know they cater to people who have been down on their luck and they send more and more people who need help, 431 of them last year.

Father Pierre of the Friary, 1076 Joan Crescent, brought the Hartmans together with three dedicated young men, Peter Chau, who is Vietnamese; Eddie Suech, who came to Victoria looking for work as a chef; and John O'Connor who like the others shared a desire to help the needy.

The group evolved the plan for hot meals which they hope will continue not just through Christmas but forever.

10 GUESTS

The hot meal program started Thursday and drew 10 guests.

Ted Davis of city welfare department told them they can expect many more.

Mrs. Hartman says, "It is sadly indicative of our 20th century society that there are so many underprivileged people in a land of plenty."

"Ours is an attempt to emphasize assistance and education rather than regulation and regimentation."

She said anyone wishing to assist can receive further information at her home (385-9253) or by calling Peter Chau (388-4046) or John O'Connor (388-6355).

Ask The Times

Q. What is the salary per month of a commander in the Canadian navy; how much is his take-home pay; is it the same anywhere in Canada? G.M.

A. The Royal Canadian Navy states that the basic salary for a commander anywhere in Canada is $1,130 per month. Officers receive an increase every two years, based on seniority, and averaging $23 per month. Thus, take-home pay depends on the salary he is receiving according to his seniority and the various deductions for income tax (the same rate as everyone else in Canada), medical and pension benefits and other deductions.

Cash Goes to Rape Suspects

CHICAGO (UPI)—Five youth gang members awaiting trial on charges ranging from rape to murder have been paid up to $6,500 a year as teachers and administrators in a federally-financed anti-poverty program, it was revealed today.

Three of the teachers, all high school dropouts free on bond on rape charges, are still on the job, officials of the south side slum project said.

Officers Dismissed in Greece

ATHENS (AP)—The Greek government announced the retirement of 20 high-ranking officers today, including eight major-generals. A decree signed by Premier George Papandopoulos said 15 were leaving military service at their own request. Among the five dismissed was Maj.-Gen. Nikitas Zolochoris, an artillery commander who fled to Turkey after the collapse, December 14, of King Constantine's uprising against the military junta.

'Flu Speeds Up Holiday

TORONTO (CP)—A flu-type bug sweeping across Metropolitan Toronto kept thousands of school children absent from their last day of school today before the Christmas holiday. Attendance was down 15 per cent in many elementary and high schools and as much as 25 per cent in some schools. The 11-day school holiday ends January 3.

Habitat Rooms Up for Rent

OTTAWA (CP)—The 114 completed apartments of Expo's Habitat will be made available for renting early in 1968. Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. announced today. Consideration is being given to completing 43 additional units in the building. The corporation is assuming responsibility for the administration and control of Expo buildings on MacKay Pier January 1.

THERAPEUTIC ABORTIONS

Two Hospitals
Favor Move
If Law ChangedBy JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Two of Greater Victoria's public hospitals will go along with therapeutic abortions if they are legalized and the third will not make up its mind until the law has been changed.

Officials at Royal Jubilee Hospital and Rest Haven Hospital in Sidney today said their procedures would be made to conform with the current amendment bill to the Criminal Code if it becomes law.

Rapid Approval
Forecast

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Trudeau Thursday predicted sweeping Criminal Code changes introduced in the Commons Thursday would win rapid and overwhelming approval.

"Parliament has shown in the past week that it is prepared to deal with so-called progressive legislation," the liberal-minded 46-year-old justice minister said.

He evidently was referring to legislation adopted by Parliament this week to broaden the grounds for divorce.

The Criminal Code changes brought forward by Mr. Trudeau, who has been justice minister for eight months, are the most extensive since a revision in the early 1950s.

Given first reading Thursday, the changes won't be debated in detail until Parliament returns from Christmas recess Jan. 22.

PEARSON TO PUSH INNER CABINET PLAN

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Prime Minister L. B. Pearson will be creating a powerful inner cabinet before he retires in April.

Mr. Pearson has long held a theory that the British practice of having a strong inner group in the cabinet would provide sounder and more efficient administrations.

Now he has disclosed his intention to create such a strong inner group to be responsible for federal planning, supervising major expenditures and establishing priorities for spending.

The prime minister in creating a powerful inner cabinet committee would likely appoint the ministers heading the key spending departments such as finance, trade, revenue, defence, agriculture, health and welfare and external affairs.

Pope Paul Makes Offer
To Mediate Viet War

IN THAILAND

Johnson
Salutes Pilots

KHORA T, Thailand (AP)—United States President Johnson flew here secretly tonight on the latest leg of a continuing mystery trip, telling American combat pilots "I want to look each of you in the eye."

Johnson flew to this American-built Thai air force base, which plays a role in the air war over Vietnam, after attending memorial rites in Australia for his Vietnam ally, Prime Minister Harold Holt.

The White House staff had sought to keep the trip here secret. Word got out about the Khorat stop, but a secrecy lid still was on the president's future travel plans.

Speaking to men in uniform here, Johnson said:

"I realize that an old man is a poor excuse for your wife and your family and your loved ones, but I wanted so much to be with you at Christmas. I want to look each of you in the eye."

There was much speculation that he might visit South Vietnam itself, although his staff refused to say where he would go next.

There have also been rumors the President would stop in Rome to talk with Pope Paul.

TALKS WITH ALLIES

During his 36 hours in Australia, Johnson talked with the interim prime minister, John McEwen, and leaders of South Vietnam, South Korea, New Zealand and the Philippines—U.S. allies in the Vietnam war—as well as with British Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore.

His meeting with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu ended with a declaration that the two men agreed on ways to promote peace in Vietnam.

Before the service in Melbourne for Holt, who disappeared last Sunday while swimming in heavy surf off the southeast coast, Johnson capped on the prime minister's wife to express his condolences. He was met by Holt's three stepsons, Nicholas, Andrew and Samuel, and was applauded by a crowd of 200.

"This is a very sad day," Johnson told the stepsons.

At the service, the Anglican primate of Australia, Archbishop Philip N. W. Strong, compared the loss of Holt to that of President Kennedy.

"In both cases an outstanding

MEN LAUGH, JOKE

17 Workers Rescued
From Water Tunnel

GORMAN, Calif. (AP)—Seventeen men, trapped for 19 hours behind a cave-in inside a snowcapped mountain, crawled through a narrow passageway to safety today.

A cheer went up as the men emerged from the entrance to a 1½-mile-long state water project tunnel in the Tehachapi mountains, which separate northern and southern California.

Fellow workers had tried to reach the men from three directions, but feared the men might be trapped as long as four or five days. However, one team-digging head-on through 80 feet of dirt, rock and steel blocking the tunnel—made rapid progress after finding the collapsed steel roof had formed a partial passageway.

QUICK WORK

"No one felt we would never get out," said one of the trapped men, H. G. Harrison, a construction inspector. But we thought it would take a week to get us out.

"How they got to us as fast as they did I'll never know."

The trapped men laughed, told jokes and ate and drank from supplies lowered through two pipes that were undamaged by the cave-in. Their air supply was never in danger and they were warmer—by at least 40 degrees—than rescuers and on-lookers standing above ground in 14-degree temperature.

WASN'T SCARED

"I wasn't scared, not a bit," declared Roy Willis. "The only reason one of the rescuers worked so hard is I owe him 30 bucks."

The tunnel project is one of four under construction in the Tehachapi mountains, part of the $2,800,000 California aqueduct which will carry 110,000,000 gallons an hour of northern California water to southern California.

William R. Gianelli, director of the state water resources department, said a hydraulically-operated digging machine was being used Thursday to change the grade in the tunnel, and it collapsed because workmen apparently didn't replace all the steel ribs and plates used for support.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Rain began turning snow to slush in the Vancouver area early today after a storm Thursday dumped up to nine inches of snow on parts of southwestern British Columbia.

LBJ Expected To Visit Rome

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Pope Paul offered today to mediate in the Vietnam war as the expectation grew here that President Johnson would visit him before Christmas.

The Pope, in his Christmas address to the College of Cardinals, said he was saddened and amazed that all attempts at impartial mediation had been foiled and said he has dared to offer his collaboration.

Well-informed sources here said today it was likely president Johnson would call on the Pope around Christmas eve on his way back from Australia. But no confirmation was available from the Vatican, Italian authorities, or the American embassy.

Vatican sources said if the president should wish to come, the Pope, who has been conducting a personal campaign for peace in Vietnam, would be glad to receive him.

The Pope told the cardinals: "We are saddened and amazed to observe how each disinterested offer of mediation has been made in vain, and each attempt at honest and peaceful negotiations rejected, while an honorable solution to the grievous and threatening dispute seem to us still possible."

Pope Paul added: "Being aloof from all party interests, and impassioned only by the human values involved, we have dared to offer our collaboration... in the most effective way we may be permitted and regarded."

Mainland
Woman Murdered

VANCOUVER (CP)—A North Vancouver mother of three children was found slain today in a bushland near Britannia Beach, 30 miles north of Vancouver.

Two North Vancouver youths and a 16-year-old North Vancouver girl were held at Corvallis, Ore., for questioning in connection with the stabbing of Mrs. Rose Vollet, 41-year-old wife of a North Vancouver fireman.

They were arrested Thursday night in Corvallis and turned over to Marion County, Ore., authorities.

James Sims, 19, and Isaac Darryl Frank, 20, were taken by Marion County Sheriff Thomas E. Bachelder to Vancouver for questioning.

The girl was held in the Marion County juvenile detention centre.

MOTOR BURNED OUT

The police said the three were arrested after a trio matching their description, traded the Vollet station wagon at a Woodburn, Ore., service station for a sports car.

Police said the station wagon, registered to Mrs. Vollet and her husband, John, had its motor burned out.

She had disappeared on a Christmas shopping trip after taking her husband to work Tuesday.

RCMP declined comment regarding charges.

Leaders Pay Tribute
To Memory of Holt

MELBOURNE (AP)—The late Australian Prime Minister Holt was revered in a solemn memorial service today in St. Paul's Anglican Cathedral.

He was eulogized before the biggest assembly of the world leaders Australia has ever known: Prince Charles, heir to the British throne; President Johnson; the prime ministers of Britain and New Zealand; a cabinet minister from Canada; Northern Development Minister Arthur Laing, and the heads of state, or top men from most Asian neighbors—Japan, India,

Indonesia, Laos, Cambodia, Malaysia, Singapore, Thailand, Nationalist China, South Vietnam, The Philippines and South Korea.

All these top people came at a moment's notice because it was only five days since Holt disappeared while swimming in the surf at Portsea and three days since it was decided to hold a memorial service today.

About 10,000 people stood in the mild summer sunshine during the service, because only 1,600 ticket-holders could get inside.

CHILDREN OF ASIA FUND

It's Orphanage or Death
For This Korean Family

By KATHRINE THOMAS

How unbearably hard it is for Canadian mothers to part with their children when they go to a summer camp.

Can we even imagine what it would be like to be forced to part with our child forever?

There were eight members in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Kim Kyung Ae, the two parents and six small children.

They lived in an old, straw-thatched hut, consisting of only one room and a tiny adjacent kitchen place on the slope of Yoo-dal, the sacred mountain protecting the city of Mokpo.

Since the family did not possess any land, there was not even an entrance gate leading to the hut.

Both parents were daily workers in the nearby vegetable fields.

But some time ago, Mrs.

Kim contracted tuberculosis. Still she continued to work, to earn a few cents a day.

Now the drought that affected South Korea last July has wiped out their employment.

It was impossible to feed all the children, crying with hunger.

So to keep them alive, Mrs. Kim had to place three of her children in an orphanage.

And because they have no money, they cannot repair their hut. The roof is leaking and the log supporting the ceiling is threatening to collapse.

They live by chance from day to day.

With the arrival of the cold season, they are now collecting leaves from the mountain, to keep them warm through the winter.

Without the help of the Unitarian Service Committee,

the Kims would have quickly succumbed to the painful rigors of their existence.

The family is now receiving medical assistance from the USC Mokpo-TB Children's clinic and a USC social team is supplying them with clothing and sufficient barley and milk rations.

There are many families throughout Korea, India and Hong Kong who are in desperate need of assistance.

Help to make their lives a little more bearable by contributing to the Times Christmas Appeal.

Donations may be left at the main branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Yates at Douglas, the Times business office or mailed to the Children of Asia Fund in care of the Victoria Daily Times.

Official receipts will be mailed out by the USC from

They Were (Hic) Good Drivers
... After the 13th Drink

EDMONTON (CP)—Two Edmonton men got drunk and drove.

Barry Sullivan and Bill Rodger, both announcers with Edmonton radio station CJCA, were trying to prove that alcohol and gasoline don't mix. They succeeded.

They were given 1½ ounces of liquor every half hour and a driving test after each drink.

After three drinks, Mr. Sullivan made twice as many driving errors as he did before his first. He had no problem with speech or with walking.

Mr. Rodger also made more errors, but got a better score than Mr. Sullivan.

The errors increased with the next two rounds.

After the seventh round—about 10 ounces of liquor—Mr. Sullivan became quite jovial, and, after the eighth, was convinced he could drive as well as ever.

But the testing officer said he wasn't able to judge distance properly, "and shouldn't be on the road."

By this time Mr. Rodger was also jovial, but his driving wasn't quite as bad.

After 10 drinks, Mr. Sullivan's speech and vision were impaired. He staggered slightly while walking. On his driving test, he knocked over poles he was supposed to drive between.

Mr. Rodger was also impaired after 13 drinks. Police said both would have been arrested if spotted driving.

In the final driving test, Mr. Sullivan scored against him as in the first. Mr. Rodger had five times as many.

ABORTIONS

commit ourselves (the hospital) to a position before we know what the change in the law is."

Royal Jubilee Hospital will go along if the bill is made into law, said executive director Dr. A. C. Pickles.

He said an "appropriate mechanism" for implementing the law would be established at the hospitals but pointed out that therapeutic abortions would have to originate "with a request of the patient."

"If such requests are made (providing the law is changed) then they would be assessed medically by a committee of senior men here," he said.

Thomas J. Bradley, administrator at Rest Haven, said legal abortions are permitted now in his hospital where a medical board decides the woman's life is at stake and he personally felt therapeutic abortions should be permitted too.

The hospital, operated by the Seventh Day Adventist Church but recognized as a general public hospital, would implement the change in the law, he said.

"I personally feel that a mother should be protected and it would be absolutely criminal to allow her health to be destroyed," he said.

'ALIVE THINKING'

Vancouver city prosecutor Stewart McMorran said it shows "alive thinking" about the problems of women.

"Offhand it seems as if the section would cover almost every situation. That's a good step in the right direction," he added.

The proposed change is one of several recommended to the Commons Thursday by Justice Minister Pierre Trudeau. Abortions would be legal in cases where a pregnancy could endanger the mother's health.

In suburban East Burnaby, the Rev. J. M. Taylor, a United Church minister, said the section does not go far enough.

"A woman should be free to decide what she wants to do with her own body. This law will do little to eliminate the great number of illegal abortions."

'NOT FAR ENOUGH'

Dr. Michael Turko, president of the B.C. Medical Association, also said the proposed change does not go far enough.

He said his organization supports abortions when a mother's health is in danger, when there is a substantial risk the child may be born with grave mental or physical disability, or when there is reasonable ground to believe the pregnancy was the result of a sexual offence.

Although the abortion amendment appeared to generate the most reaction, other sections of the omnibus bill also came in for comment.

Opinion varied on the proposal to change the impaired driving section by making breath tests mandatory.

Comments by Attorney-General Robert Bonner suggested that B.C. will retain its present "roadside suspensions" program which permits police to suspend drivers' licences for 24 hours on the basis of a .08 per cent blood alcohol reading.

The federal change could still be implemented in cases of formal charges of impaired driving because the blood-alcohol level involved would be higher at 1 per cent.

"I think there is a lot to be said for the system we have adopted," Mr. Bonner said.

"This way we have shown we can produce useful results without putting the motorist through the criminal courts."

But B.C. Safety Council president B. M. Brabant of Vancouver said he fully agreed with the compulsory breath tests because it would help reduce the traffic death toll.

He said he was impressed in a visit this month to England where "dramatic results and changes in social patterns" have been achieved by similar legislation this year.

Mr. Brabant said "people in Britain have just stopped driving when they're drinking because they know it makes them subject to immediate court action."

FOURTH 'SOBER'

He said rigidly enforced breath testing would bring about social customs similar to those in Scandinavia where, in a party of four persons "only three will drink and the fourth will stay sober so he's in condition to drive them home."

But J. C. Cowan, president of Victoria Bar Association, said he personally was divided in his feeling towards the amendment.

He said he agreed with defining a certain level as a driving offence in itself, but he had reservations about making it an offence to refuse to take the test.

"The thing that concerns me is what happens to our principle that a person is innocent until proven guilty and not automatically because he refuses to incriminate himself?"

NO B.C. LOTTERY

Mr. Bonner said the provision to allow lotteries could result in desirable easing of the clamps on church schools and other good-cause fund-raising organizations, but he ruled out any likelihood that the B.C. government would launch its own lottery scheme.

"I don't think the government

ABORTIONS

should be in the gambling business," he said.

"It's bad enough to be in the liquor business."

There was also mixed reaction to the proposed change in the laws governing homosexuality—permitting such acts between consenting adults in private. Mr. McMorran called it a retrograde step.

"It is just a further drop in the general community standards of morality," he said.

He said legalizing acts would give impetus to those who have kept their homosexual impulses under control, or hidden.

However, Rev. Taylor said the reform was long overdue.

"I am not in favor of encouraging homosexuality, but along with the changed law I am in favor of forensic treatment clinics for homosexuals," he said.

The amendment giving judges power to control what can be publicly reported on preliminary hearings stirred controversy in the legal profession.

Under present law, news media may report everything at preliminary hearings except confessions or admissions which the accused might make. Mr. McMorran said he liked open reporting.

But Mr. Cowan said he was "all in favor of it and wish it had gone further so that no evidence whatever in a preliminary hearing could be published."

"I feel that with our system of preliminary hearings preceding jury trials, publication of things which later might be ruled inadmissible is prejudicial to the accused and jury members can't always wipe out entirely the memory of what they've read."

David Beeching, manager of the Victoria SPCA branch, welcomed the amendment which would allow magistrates to prohibit a person convicted of cruelty to animals from keeping a pet or animal for a period of two years.

"Obviously this would be applicable in cases of vicious cruelty rather than neglect. There have been cases in Ontario, particularly, where persons have been convicted regularly every six months of cruelty and this should help that situation."

Rae Appointed Honorary Lt.-Colonel

Lt. Col. William Rae, DSC, VD, Croix de Guerre, has been appointed honorary lieutenant-colonel of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's).

He was a company commander with the 16th Battalion, Canadian Scottish, an organization of the unit at Valcartier in 1914, and served overseas until invalided to England in June 1915.

In December, 1915, Col. Rae was appointed second-in-command of the Third Battalion and in May, 1916, was given command of the Fourth Battalion, CEF. He served in France, Belgium, Germany and England until 1919.

Central Saanich May Enlarge Fire Hall

Enlargement of Central Saanich volunteer fire department hall is expected to be considered by council next year as the result of a fire marshal's report.

The report recommended the modernization and enlargement of the meeting-recreational area or the present firehall.

It also urged purchase of a modern pump unit to replace an outdated truck.

Acquisition of a site for a future satellite firehall, in the Brentwood Bay area was also suggested.

The report followed an inquiry made at the request of the fire committee chaired by Coun. Philip Benn.

The department at present has 30 volunteer firemen.

Boy, 16, Pleads Guilty to Selling Controlled Drug

A 16-year-old boy who sold methadone to another youth pleaded guilty to trafficking in a controlled drug when he appeared in central court Thursday.

Richard Ray Whitman of Suite 211, 845 Esquimalt Road, will be sentenced Dec. 29 after Magistrate Ostler has studied a background report on the youth prepared by a probation officer.

Detective Constable Murray McArthur told the court Thursday that Whitman had sold the drug on Nov. 20 or 21 to another youth at 809 Penwell and had received a marked $5 bill. Police later found the marked bill in Whitman's possession when the premises were raided.

Whitman is a user of the drug, court was told.

quested, for the re-establishment of true peace."

The Pope repeated his earlier appeals for a stop to the American bombing of North Vietnam.

He also called on the North Vietnamese to give a "sign of a serious desire for peace" and indirectly called on the Soviet Union to use its influence to this purpose.

The Russians are "good chess players," he said, and it may be a fact that the West is not doing enough to counter the Russian moves. The West may continue to lose a bit of ground on the grand strategy play but eventually the truth will win out, he said.

Men Snubbing Starched Harnesses

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — While winning equal opportunities for themselves, women have freed men from their inhibitions about the way they dress.

"Women begin to look like, and in a sense, become men, the men, freed of the responsibility of running things... become more flamboyant," British fashion historian James Laver recently told an interviewer.

"Man is trying to get women to notice him," Laver said, "and I don't think his interest in clothing and colognes... is necessarily going to make him effeminate."

He's wearing: Turtlenecks—Men have probably struck their hardest blow for fashion independence by snubbing the necktie, bow tie and other starched harnesses.

Fur coats—Men are wearing rugged military cut Persian lambs and muleskins in hardy trench styles.

Colored shirts—Television started it. Prominent people appearing on camera were asked to wear blue shirts because white bounces light. Others wanted to look as though they were prominent. After blues, came yellow, green and even pink.

HIDES THE PAUNCH

Vests—The mod influence passed, but the vest, a vestige of it, disguises a paunch so nicely it's here to stay.

Double-breasted—Men have reverted to double-breasted sports blazers, dress suits, formal dinner jackets, and even double-breasted pajamas.

Military influence—There is something about a soldier's garb that makes a man adore anything with epaulets, brass buttons and boots.

Other things—Once largely the uniform of the mechanic, the jump suit now is leisure wear for the avant-garde.

TWO JAILED FISHERIES UNION MEN

Pearson Reviews Paroles

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson says he will take a personal look into the possibility of Christmas paroles for two fisheries union men now in prison in British Columbia.

Alvin Hamilton (PC—Qu'appelle) asked Mr. Pearson to make a personal review of the cases of Steve Stavens and Homer Stevens, each sentenced to a year in jail for contempt of court last September. Stavens is president of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union and Stevens is secretary.

Mr. Hamilton said leniency could be shown the two men "in view of the season."

Mr. Pearson said he would "look into it personally" with Solicitor-General Pennell, keeping Mr. Hamilton's representation in mind.

Mr. Pennell granted a Christmas amnesty last year for other B.C. labor leaders in jail on similar contempt charges.

The fisheries union men were jailed on charges arising from distribution of union material during a labor dispute this year at Prince Rupert. They are in a prison forestry camp near Chilliwack.

The union asked for release of the men at Christmas and received a reply from Mr. Pennell saying he was considering the possibility of allowing them a special parole over the Christmas season.

GEN. ALLARD

He Was Offered Post in Cabinet

By HAROLD MORRISON

BRUSSELS (CP) — Gen. Jean Allard, chief of the Canadian defence staff, says he turned down a cabinet post in the Canadian government in 1955, "and I thank God I did."

"Now I believe it is too late to be a politician," added the 54-year-old soldier as he wound up his meetings with NATO military chiefs last week.

Normally, generals retire at 55 but usually chiefs of staff get one or two extensions.

Allard said in an interview that ranged from the prospects of NATO's new mobile destroyer force, to the war in Vietnam.

"I would not have been able to obtain the experience I now have gained, and I would make a poor politician, and I don't think I would fit the political life very well."

HAPPIER THINKING

Asked whether he would write his memoirs when he retires, Allard, popularly known as a fighting man's soldier, replied: "Never in your bloody life. I am happier thinking than writing."

Allard said the new naval mobile force planned by NATO would provide a good psychological lift for the local people in countries where the destroyer force visited. He anticipated the force, to which Canada may contribute one destroyer, would move from the North Atlantic region to other areas—even the Mediterranean where the Soviet Union has built up a big naval presence.

He did not think the NATO force would deter the Russians but would make the local people in the region feel they have not been forgotten.

Allard praised his Canadian forces highly. He said one of the hardest tasks in recent years was the move of the Canadian NATO squadrons from France to Germany after President de Gaulle ordered NATO forces from French territory.

"The way the Canadian Air Force moved from France to Germany without loss of total effectiveness was the greatest tribute to the profession. The air division is sacred—bless their souls."

Allard, a onetime military attaché in Moscow, said he firmly believes the Russian war can be concluded that atomic warfare cannot be profitable under any circumstances.

The Russians are "good chess players," he said, and it may be a fact that the West is not doing enough to counter the Russian moves. The West may continue to lose
